Legal Authority: 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 203

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend 24 CFR 203.42(a). The current rule prohibits the insuring of a mortgage on property on which there is a dwelling to be rented by a mortgagor, if the property is part of, or contiguous to, a subdivision or group of similar properties and if the mortgagor has a financial interest in eight or more of the contiguous properties. This rulemaking would modify this rental property mortgage restriction, thereby enabling investors to more freely apply for FHA mortgage insurance to purchase one-to-four family rental units.

Abstract: Current HUD policy is to allow a high percentage of closing costs associated with the financing of single family homes to be included as part of the insurable mortgage amount. This results from the HUD treating closing costs as part of the appraised value or cost of acquisition of a single family property. It is proposed that HUD regulations be revised so that "appraised value" or "costs of acquisition" are applied in a manner which prohibits the inclusion of closing-related costs.

Abstract: The Section 8 Existing Housing Assistance Payments Program is authorized by the United States Housing Act of 1937. HUD provides assistance payments on behalf of eligible families to owners. By regulations, the Department also encourages PHAs administering the Section 8 Certificate Program to promote greater choice of housing opportunities for eligible families in the program. Currently, PHAs are encouraged to enter into administrative arrangements with other PHAs to permit certificate holders to seek housing in the broadest range of areas. While there are several voluntary mobility programs in operation around the country, a Section 8 Certificate holder only has limited opportunity to relocate. Housing assistance payments are determined in relation to the area-wide Fair Market Rent established at least annually by the Department. To assist the Department in making decisions about increasing proposed Fair Market Rents in response to public comments, the Department will amend its regulations to require additional data. Thus, not only will commenters be requested to comment on the accuracy of the proposed rents, but commenters also will be asked to submit data showing that the current or proposed Section 8 assistance is not adequate and makes the program or project (as appropriate) unworkable unless changed.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule would make a technical change in 24 CFR 390 to accommodate the new automated system for handling the issuance of commitments to guarantee mortgage-backed securities. The current rule requires that mortgage in a pool of mortgages backing the issuance of guaranteed securities have a date for the first scheduled monthly payment of principal and interest, or date of purchase from an Association that is no more than twelve months before the date of issuance of the GNMA commitment. This rule would revise this requirement to provide that the date for the first scheduled monthly payment of principal and interest could be no more than 24 months before the issue date of the securities.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 1437; 42 USC 3535(d)

CFR Citation: 24 CFR 990.110

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule establishes new conditions under which a Public Housing Agency may use a Projected Occupancy Percentage of less than 97% in computing its per-unit Operating Income Level under the Performance Funding System. A PHA that is defined as a low occupancy PHA is required to have a HUD-approved Comprehensive Plan which sets out strategies for increasing its occupancy rate to 97%. A low occupancy PHA with such a Plan may use its yearly, PHA-wide occupancy goal, rather than 97% to compute its Operating Income Level. A PHA with a high occupancy rate (equal to or greater than 97%) may use 97% as its Projected Occupancy Percentage in computing its per-unit Operating Income Level. These changes enable a PHA to maximize its total income by reducing its vacancies.

Semiannual Agenda of Rules Scheduled for Review or Development

AGENCY: Department of the Interior.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda of rules scheduled for review or development.

SUMMARY: This notice provides the semiannual agenda of rules scheduled for review or development between April 1986 and October 1986. An agenda is required by the Regulatory Flexibility Act and Executive Order 12291.

ADDRESS: Unless otherwise indicated, all Agency Contacts are located at the Department of the Interior, 18th and C Streets, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20240.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: All comments and inquiries with regard to these rules should be directed to the appropriate Agency Contact. General comments relating to the agenda should be directed to the Division of Directives and Regulatory Management, Office of Information Resources Management, Department of the Interior, at the address above or on 202-343-6191.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: With this publication the Department satisfies the requirement of Executive Order 12291 that the Department publish in April and October of each year an agenda of rules that have been issued or are expected to be issued, and currently effective rules that are scheduled for review.

Simultaneously the Department meets the requirement of the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) that an agenda be published in April and October of each year identifying rules which will have significant economic effects on a substantial number of small entities; those rules which will have such effects are specifically identified in the agenda.

This agenda also identifies rules determined to be "significant" under Executive Order 12498 and which are included in this Department's 1986 regulatory program. A more comprehensive discussion of this program and the rules will be contained in the "Regulatory Program of the United States Government" (April 1, 1986 - March 31, 1987), which will be published by the Office of Management and Budget.

DATED: February 3, 1986.

Gerald R. Rice,

Abstract: The Indian Land Consolidation Act (Act) was enacted on January 12, 1983, and changes existing law regarding the descent of Indian trust and restricted lands. The Act provides that certain undivided fractional interests in such lands can now be acquired by the tribe instead of descending by intestacy or devise. Existing regulations governing the probate of Indian lands by Indian Probate Judges must therefore be amended to conform with the Act.

1008. MARINE MAMMALS

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1382(a)

CFR Citation: 50 CFR 18

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service will propose rules that would require the marking, tagging, or otherwise identifying of raw parts of certain lawfully taken marine mammals, including those taken by Alaska Natives for purposes of subsistence or the creation and selling of authentic native articles of handicrafts and clothing. Except for scientific research purposes, the rules would also prohibit exportation of raw parts of these marine mammals from Alaska and the sale of such parts, other than those that are edible, to persons other than resident Alaska Natives. These rules are necessary for management purposes.

1020. CRITERIA FOR DETERMINATIONS OF ADVERSE IMPACT UNDER SECTION 165(D)(2)(C)(II) AND (III) OF THE CLEAN AIR ACT

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7475(d)

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Under the Clean Air Act, the Department of the Interior, as Federal Land Manager, has the affirmative responsibility to protect the air quality related values of its class 1 areas and to consider whether proposed new major sources of air pollution will have an adverse impact on these values. The Department has developed and applied "working" criteria for making adverse impact determinations in several cases since 1982. Both industry and environmental groups have commented on the "working" criteria and requested further rulemaking action on the criteria. In response to these requests, this rulemaking action would solicit public input on the working definitions as well as related technical and legal issues.

The Notice of Intent will ask several questions. The answers to these questions will be useful in determining alternatives and potential costs and benefits.

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 9, Subpart A

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: As mandated by the "Mining In The Parks Act of 1976", the NPS promulgated its existing regulations to assure that operations on valid mining claims within units of the National Park System are conducted so as to prevent or minimize damage to park resources. The experience gained by the application of these regulations over the past six years indicates that certain adjustments are now necessary to clarify and simplify the existing regulatory language and to improve the management of mineral resources within NPS units. Specifically, several sections of the current regulations either have proven difficult to interpret or pertain to a surface disturbance moratorium that expired in 1980 thus rendering them obsolete.

1064. MINERALS MANAGEMENT NONFEDERAL OIL AND GAS RIGHTS

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1 et seq; 31 USC 9701; 5 USC 301

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 9B

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Several sections of the regulations were ambiguously written which has caused confusion in interpreting the existing regulations during site specific implementation. NPS wants to make technical revisions to clarify requirements for both applicants and the NPS, such as: updating terms for consistency with existing policies and practices; setting bond limits consistent with existing reclamation costs; allowing NPS to collect administrative fees for issuing permits consistent with cost reimbursement requirements of Congressional and Executive direction; clarifying compliance issues associated with different access conditions; and, making the regulations applicable to all non-federal oil and gas operations within affected units of the NPS consistent with the enabling acts of affected units.

These are technical revisions to the regulations governing non-federal oil and gas activities within affected units of the National Park System. The existing authorities are 16 U.S.C. 1, et seq. and 31 U.S.C. 9701, 5 U.S.C. 301; and enabling legislation of the affected units.

1065. ● MINERALS MANAGEMENT NONFEDERAL RIGHTS OTHER THAN OIL AND GAS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1 et seq; 31 USC 9701; 5 USC 301

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 9C

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Extensive nonfederal mineral rights exist within units of the National Park System. Two hundred eight park units contain privately-owned inholdings totalling over 4.5 million acres and 96 park units contain split estates (surface is federally owned and the subsurface is privately owned) totaling 1.2 million acres. The extent of the minerals associated with nonfederal mineral rights is less well defined. Currently, few nonfederal mineral rights, other than oil and gas, are being developed within NPS units. The Service expects this relatively inactive development trend to continue. However, when such rights are proposed for development, the Service is charged by Congress to ensure that approved activities within park boundaries are consistent with the purposes for which the units were established. The proposed regulation would establish procedures and standards for the exercise of nonfederal mineral rights, for minerals other than oil and gas, to ensure that development activities are conducted in a manner to protect affected park units. The proposed regulations would establish consistent requirements for operators and the Service.

CFR Citation: 43 CFR 2653

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Service is proposing to amend 43 CFR 2653.5 by deleting all references to the Service as the consulting agency concerning the cultural value and significance of existing Alaska Native cemetery sites and historical places. This revision will relieve the Service from the responsibility of being the consulting agency for sites located on all Federal lands in Alaska, thus eliminating an expensive duplication of Federal effort.

CFR Citation: 48 CFR 1489; 48 CFR 1452.289; 48 CFR 1453.2; 48 CFR 1453.3

Abstract: The proposed regulation would establish Bureau-specific solicitation provisions, contract clauses and prescriptions for their use. These are necessary to supplement and implement the Federal Acquisition Regulation and the Department of the Interior Acquisition Regulation. This will provide standard contractual language for provisions and clauses not otherwise available in the Federal or Interior regulations that are needed by our operational contracting activities. This action should result in cost savings as this development and standardization will relieve the individual contracting activities of the responsibility of developing their own.

This action is without cost to any party but will benefit children and concessioners by permitting concessioners to employ children between the ages of 14 and 16. It will benefit parents working for a concessioner by enabling the concessioner to employ their children under the age of 16 who otherwise may be unemployed or would need to be transported to a place of working outside a national park area, sometimes a considerable distance. 1096. IDENTIFICATION OF INTEGRAL VISTAS ASSOCIATED WITH FEDERAL CLASS I AREAS

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7491; 16 USC 1 et seq National Park Service Organic Act

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 16, (New)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will provide guidelines for identification of integral vistas and a list of integral vistas associated with 43 of the 48 National Park Service mandatory class I areas where visibility is an important value. The alternatives under consideration include (a) no action and (b) proposal of revised list of integral vistas. Upon completion, the RIA will discuss costs and benefits of the rule. Cost-benefit analysis is difficult, however, and speculative at best, since the rule merely identifies the integral vistas, but commits the decision on whether and how much to protect any particular vista to the permitting authority (usually the state, otherwise EPA). In other words, once an integral vista is properly and timely identified, the permitting authority must balance its protection against costs of compliance, the time necessary for compliance, the energy and nonair quality environmental impacts of compliance, and the remaining useful life of any existing source, subject to such requirements.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 16 USC 3

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 50.19

Abstract: The rule would prohibit structures, with certain exceptions, and limit the number and size of signs placed or set down in Lafayette Park. The rule is being promulgated in response to citizen complaints concerning the continually worsening visual blight in the Park, and in response to safety and resource protection concerns. Large numbers of signs and structures now present in Lafayette Park have contributed to the steady deterioration of this historic and well manicured "garden park". In addition to the visual blight created by these objects, substantive damage to the Park results from the placement and support of large signs and structures. Finally, poorly constructed signs and structures create constant safety hazards in the Park. Many less restrictive alternatives were considered but found to be inadequate to meet the substantial government interests present here. The rule should have minimal potential costs, the only costs anticipated being possible increased law enforcement costs. The benefits to

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 142

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The review of this rule was originally assigned an "End Review Date" of October 1984. During the 1985 Shipping Season, which extends from April through October 1985, the BIA will be conducting a test of the Department of Defense Coolbarge system. During that period, all Bureau-sponsored cargo will be shipped via Coolbarge and the USMS "Northstar" will be temporarily removed from service. If the test proves to be successful, then, the Northstar Operation (the use of the Bureau-held ship) will be permanently discontinued in favor of Coolbarge. After completing the test evaluation, decisions will be made regarding Northstar vs. Coolbarge. After the policy decisions are made, the regulation will be deletad or revised as appropriate to reflect and describe the new concept of Operation. The estimated completion date should be changed to October 1986.

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 25 USC 2; 25 USC 9

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 2

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The present administrative appeal regulations are ambiguous and misleading. It is difficult to tell what issues may be appealed and to whom the appeal should be sent. Most deadlines are uncertain. Those that are certain are often unrealistic. It is also unclear when a final decision will be rendered by the Interior Board of Indian Appeals and when it will be rendered by the Assistant Secretary for Indian Affairs. Alternatives will be developed by reviewing the existing appeal regulations of other agencies. Consideration will be given to specifying which types of appeals go to the Assistant Secretary and which to the Board. The alternative of providing for the Assistant Secretary to make a case-by-case decision whether or not to refer the matter to the Board will also be considered. The primary benefit should be reduced frustration for both appellants and the BIA officials who handle the appeals. The greatest cost may be that both appellants and BIA officials may have to comply with more specified procedures and meet more deadlines in order for the system to work.

Abstract: The Bureau of Indian Affairs proposes to revise the rule concerning the circumstances under which the Bureau of Indian Affairs, in the performance of the Federal Government's trust responsibility to Indian tribes, may, in its discretion, provide Departmental funds to an Indian tribe or other Indian organization for the payment of a private attorney's legal services. The proposed revisions would not change the underlying policy of the current rule which is to pay for private counsel to represent Indian tribes only in exceptional circumstances. The principal changes involve representation in child custody proceedings, services of tribal court personnel, and non-litigation services. The proposed revision would also provide that when trust resources are involved, tribes and individual Indian allottees are eligible to apply for and receive Federally appropriated funds under 25 CFR 89.

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 170

Abstract: With the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982, Indian reservation road construction is funded from the Highway Trust Fund with authorizations for Fiscal Years 1983, 1984, 1985 and 1986. Other provisions include a requirement for proper maintenance of roads, applications of the "Buy Indian" and Indian Self Determination Acts, and joint program management by the Secretaries of Interior and Transportation. These changes in the law make changes in regulations imperative. The no-action alternative would leave program managers with outdated guidelines. Cost of the action will be minimal and it imposes no burden on the public. Benefits will be a better ordered road construction and maintenance program on Indian reservations, greater management efficiency, and clarity of procedures for federal managers, legislators and tribal officials. Proposed Rule Stage

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The purpose of the program is to provide small tribes (1,500 or less population) with core management capability to enable them to administer tribal affairs and programs in a competent and responsible manner. The program is intended to supplement and complement Section 104(a) grants and other resources available to the tribe. The program is administered on a basis of need and merit with stringent eligibility and performance guidelines. An administrative decision was made to integrate the program with the grant program found in 25 CFR 272, which is currently under revision. Each grant program could and would maintain its separate identity under this arrangement but tribes would be afforded greater flexibility for use of funds under the programs.

Upon completion of the integration of rules and completion of the proposed and final rule stages for 25 CFR 272, the rules under 25 CFR 278 would be removed.

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 25 USC 323 to 328

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 169

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Bureau of Indian Affairs intends to amend several sections of its rights-of-way regulations which impose a variety of specific requirements on grantees of rights-of-way over Indian lands. These requirements were intended to implement public laws enacted around the turn of the century which authorized the Secretary of the Interior to issue rights-of-way for various specific purposes. In 1948 Congress gave the Department comprehensive authority to grant rights-of-way for any purpose or any term of years without the antiquated restrictions of the older statutes. The regulations continue to reflect the old requirements and the result has been inconsistent application of the 1948 Act. The removal or revisions of these sections would end that practice.

protect and increase the currently depleted populations. No alternative actions for addressing the problem are being considered. The program will be confined to a localized area, and economic effects will be relatively insignificant. Benefits will be conservation of existing populations through reduced hunting mortality. Costs for personnel and equipment to enforce the regulations are estimated at $235,000 for the first year and $200,000 annually thereafter, to be derived by reallocation of existing funding.

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 25 USC 2; 25 USC 9

CFR Citation: 25 CFR 249

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule is an annual amendment covering the treaty Indian fishery in waters subject to the Fraser River Convention. Regulations provided by the rule assure fulfillment of obligations to treaty tribes and to Canada. The alternative of no regulation would leave the treaty Indian fishery unregulated, and was not considered. The rule is beneficial in that it will allow for the implementation of treaty guaranteed rights in a manner consistent with U.S. obligations to Canada. The rule will not result in a major increase in costs or prices for consumers, individual industries, Federal, State, or local government agencies, or geographic regions.

Abstract: Proposes the desirability of new regulations to govern Production and Development Operations on the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) for minerals other than oil, gas, and sulphur under the authority of the OCS Lands Act; and requests comments and recommendations from interested parties. Alternative is to specify requirements in a lease document. Promulgation of regulation is not expected to result in costs significantly more than those incurred through the unregulated use of good commercial practices. The regulation will require that hard mineral operations are conducted in a manner that will ensure safety and protection of the environment.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1863; 43 USC 1331 et seq; 42 USC 2000d to 2000e

Abstract: There are no provisions in current Minerals Management Service regulations which provide a mechanism for remedy of unlawful discrimination in Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) employment. Rules would be developed to provide a process whereby persons who believed they had been denied employment because of unlawful discrimination would have a forum. These rules would implement the purposes of section 604 of the OCS Lands Act Amendment of 1978. Alternatives considered are no action, issuance of a policy statement and no rules, and proposal of extensive affirmative action rules similar to those rescinded in the past. Very few complaints are expected to arise as there has been no evidence of discrimination to date. Therefore, costs are expected to be minimal. Benefits would be the assurance that the requirements of section 604 are being fully carried out.

Abstract: The Minerals Management Service is considering direct payment of minerals royalties to Tribes or allottees. Annually, about $175 million is distributed to approximately 20,000 individual allottees and Tribes. The payments are sent by the payor to MMS and from MMS to the Bureau of Indian Affairs for distribution. The present system increases the risk of making late or wrong payment and is extremely expensive and inefficient to administer. Also, accountability is difficult to establish under the present system.

The DOI is conducting a conflict assessment to determine the likelihood of the interested and affected parties being able to reach an agreement on an air quality regulatory program. Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 252.7; 30 CFR 251.14; 30 CFR 250.4

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Elaborates more fully MMS policy with regard to sharing proprietary information with states which is required by sections 6(g) and 26(d) of the OCS Lands Act. The elaboration of the MMS policy will have no economic effect. The alternative is to not promulgate this amendment.

1206. REMOVAL OF POSTPRODUCTION PLATFORMS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Information is being solicited concerning requirements governing removal of postproduction platforms. Changes could provide more latitude for disposition of platforms following the completion of OCS oil and gas operations. Benefits could include increased development of marine life, improvements in private and commercial fishing, and reduced costs to industry. Alternative is to leave existing rules unchanged.

Abstract: Rules have not been established for Royalty payment on Federal and Indian leases committed to Federally approved exploratory unit agreements that are pending final approval of an initial participating area or expansion of existing participating area by the Bureau of Land Management (BLM). Significance: Regulatory Program

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250, (Revision)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The rules at 30 CFR 250 will be revised by consolidating regulations, OCS Orders, Notices to Lessees, and related offshore operating requirements into a unified body of regulations; eliminating burdensome and counterproductive requirements; adding performance standards; and simplifying and streamlining these rules to the maximum extent practicable. Other alternatives considered were not revising the regulations and revising only those regulations identified by industry.

Abstract: In some instances, current regulations result in release of proprietary data and information before the company which collected the data and information is able to use it during a lease sale in the area to which the data and information pertain. 1214. ● BOREHOLE ABANDONMENT

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1331 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.44

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: There are no provisions in current Minerals Management Service regulations which address the requirements for the temporary abandonment of a borehole. This revision allows an operator to temporarily abandon a borehole in an environmentally sound manner. There are no potential additional costs as the rule reflects current industry practice. The benefits are an operator may be able to utilize a drilled well at a later point rather than immediately abandoning it, thereby reducing the cost of operations. The requirements in the amendment will ensure that the temporarily abandoned wells will not constitute a hazard to navigation or other uses of the ocean, or to the environment.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1331 et seq

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Proposes to establish procedures to obtain testimony from witnesses or persons who have knowledge of serious accidents, fires, blowouts, or spills that occurred during oil and gas and sulphur operations in the Outer Continental Shelf. The testimony would help accident investigation panels to determine the cause or probable cause of an accident under investigation. The procedures would facilitate meetings of investigatory panels and would reduce legal challenges to future Minerals Management Service fact-finding investigations. The alternative would be not to have procedures. The proposed rule is procedural in nature; therefore, it does not imply cost.

Abstract: There are no provisions in current Minerals Management Service regulations requiring the submission of evacuation plans for fixed manned facilities on the OCS. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 257, or a new part to be determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Proposes the desirability of new regulations to govern exploration on the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) for minerals other than oil, gas, and sulphur under the authority of the OCS Lands Act; and requests comments and recommendations from interested parties. Alternative is to specify requirements in a permitting document rather than in regulations. Promulgation of regulations is not expected to result in costs significantly more than those incurred through the unregulated use of good commercial practices. Significance: Regulatory Program

Abstract: Proposes the desirability of new regulations to govern lease issuance on the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) for minerals other than oil, gas, and sulphur under the authority of the OCS Lands Act; and requests comments and recommendations from interested parties. Abstract: Revisions to 30 CFR 290 are needed to assure that the administrative appeals procedures are compatible with the newly adopted civil penalty regulations of 30 CFR 241, are in accord with current organizational configurations, and contain new provisions concerning filing dates and the submission of confidential information. Persons exercising administrative appeals rights would be required to identify information that they claim is exempt from public disclosure and to provide second copies of appeals documents. The procedural revisions should increase efficiencies in processing appeals and reduce risks of inadvertent disclosure of private information. Legal Authority: 30 USC 181 et seq

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Notice to Lessees No. 5 (NTL-5) requires payment of royalty on gas based on the higher of market price or the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) ceiling price. This requirement is not appropriate in times of market "softness" when demand is low and market prices are universally lower than the FERC ceiling price. This proposal would allow royalty to be paid on the market price when it is lower than the FERC ceiling price. The alternative is no action which would result in the adverse effect of litigation by the industry against the Minerals Management Service.

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1352

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.3; 30 CFR 251.14-1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Amends rules to provide for extensions of the terms during which data and information are not releasable to the public without consent of the lessees or permittees. The terms would be extended for areas of the OCS designated by the Secretary as unavailable for leasing. The rule would protect the proprietary nature of data and information from areas unavailable for leasing. When areas are unavailable, data and information cannot be used commercially as it was intended and the Government does not get the benefit of data and information that would have been collected had they been able to be used commercially. Not providing extensions would harm owners of already collected data and information and discourage collection of additional data and information. This rule is expected to affect the data and information generated from 20 permits per year. The value of the data and information can be estimated based on an average of $1,000,000 per permit to generate the data and information. The maximum impact of the proposed rule is estimated to be the cost of generating the data and information or $20,000,000 per year.

1225. SUSPENSION AND DEBARMENT AS ADDITIONAL PENALTY

Legal Authority: 30 USC 181 et seq

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Minerals Leasing Act and Federal Oil and Gas Royalty Management Act authorize assessing significant penalties for the failure to pay royalties. These penalties include financial penalties, criminal sanctions, and the authority to revoke leases. Although debarring authority is not explicitly granted, we believe we have that authority. It is needed because the other remedies may not be effective. The process approval is complicated and time consuming. There may be little incentive for a company to comply at the outset. Debarment would provide that incentive. The alternative considered is operating only under the present penalty regulations at 30 CFR 241.

1232. SUSPENSION OF OPERATIONS AND LEASE CANCELLATION

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1334

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.12

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Amends the regulations to require the granting of an automatic suspension of operations to permit time to carry out the activities described in an approved development and production plan for a Gulf of Mexico lease in water depths of 400 to 900 meters. Alternatives considered include maintaining the current policy of discretionary suspensions and granting longer primary terms in deeper water. The amendment is expected to cut costs and increase Federal revenues by eliminating some of the uncertainties of operating in deeper water.

1233. EIGHT-YEAR PRIMARY TERMS FOR LEASES IN 400 TO 900 METERS OF WATER

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1337(b)(2)

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 250.34-1; 30 CFR 256.37

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The amendment would provide 8-year primary terms for leases in water depths of 400 to 900 meters with a requirement to commence an exploratory well within the first 5 years of the term. The longer term is to provide the time needed to explore, develop, and produce in deeper water. Current rules provide a 5-year term with an automatic suspension of operations to carry out the activities set out in an approved development and production plan. The rule applies to the Gulf of Mexico only. Alternatives considered include extending the automatic suspension provisions to all OCS, granting lease terms between 5 and 10 years at various water depths from 300 to 900 meters, or leaving the rules as is. The industry is expected to realize increased profit from marginal leases and the government should receive higher bids because the risk of losing the lease is decreased.

1234. AREA ADJACENT TO A STATE

Legal Authority: 43 USC 1352

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 252.2(e)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Amendment would revise the definition of area adjacent to a State. Current regulations give the definition as that portion of the OCS within a planning area if such planning area is bordered by that State. Under current rules New York and Rhode Island are not considered adjacent to the North Atlantic planning area but are adjacent to the Mid-Atlantic planning area. The amendment would deem both states adjacent to both planning areas for the purpose of inspecting proprietary information. Alternatives include leaving the current rule as is or deeming the states adjacent the North Atlantic planning area and not the Mid-Atlantic.

1235. SUBCHAPTER A - GENERAL, APPLICABILITY

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 700.11; 30 CFR 704

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The lack of review procedures for operations meeting the two-acre exemption under the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act has led to difficulty in enforcing this provision of the Statute. Therefore, OSMRE is proposing to implement rules to identify the procedures by which a surface mining operation will be exempted from the provisions of the Statute. The proposed rule will identify the qualification and operator notification requirements, verification procedures and recordation process. The rule would result in benefits to small operators and regulatory authorities in clarifying those operations clearly meeting the exemption criteria and they would be treated as such. No additional costs to the environment would occur because operations would not commence within a specified time of notice, for regulatory authority review.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 701.5; 30 CFR 785.19(d)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would comply with a ruling by the District Court for the District of Columbia which stated that the definition of farming and agricultural activities were not equal as it related to Alluvial Valley Floors as defined in OSM's regulations. The Court ordered that the definition be repromulgated in a manner consistent with Congressional intent. Pursuant to the Court ruling, additional guidance would be provided as to what the "essential hydrologic functions" are of AVFs.

Abstract: The regulation will address the sections that were remanded back to OSM by the action of the Court and modify some provisions that are confusing in the existing file. The changes will provide additional guidance to the surface coal mine operator in fulfilling the performance standards of the Act. Costs will not be increased because the regulations will amplify existing requirements.

The rulemaking will seek to clarify whether OSM's rules have the effect of prohibiting underground mining operations related to the features and facilities within the distance limitations enumerated in sections 522(e)(4) and (5) of the Act. The proposed rulemaking will address the issue of what is a "Surface Impact" incident to an underground mine.

Additional Information: The Office of Surface Mining has determined that the proposed rulemaking constitutes a major Federal action requiring an EIS to meet the requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act. OSM has also made the determination that the proposed rule may be significant within the meaning of E.O. 12291. Precise cost/price impacts cannot be determined prior to further development of the regulation, but such costs are anticipated to be significant in terms of E.O. 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act. Therefore, a Preliminary Regulatory Impact Analysis and Small Entity Flexibility Analysis are being prepared.

1239. PERMANENT REGULATORY PROGRAM DEFINITIONS

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 701.5

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed rulemaking is in response to a court order of the District Court for the District of Columbia which remanded the portion of OSM's definition of "affected area" relating to the description and inclusion of roads in "affected areas." The proposed regulation will address alternative definitions and descriptions of roads as part of the definition of "affected areas" and clarify the relationship of these terms to various provisions of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977. OSM is unable at this time to determine precisely what additional costs would be associated with the rule. It should be minimal, however, as this rule is intended only to identify the limitations on roads to be included in surface mining operations.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 701.5

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking action is in response to a Court Order by the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia In re; Permanent Surface Mining Regulation Litigation II, July 15, 1985. The proposed regulation would amend the definition of previously mined area to include only those lands mined prior to May 3, 1978, and not reclaimed to the standards of the Act. This rule may lead to a reduction of environmental benefits since there will be less incentive for remining and reclamation of mines abandoned after May 3, 1978. Otherwise, there are no significant increase or decrease in costs.

1241. EXEMPTION FOR COAL EXTRACTION INCIDENTAL TO THE EXTRACTION OF OTHER MINERALS

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 702

Abstract: The Surface Mining Act exempts mining operations that extract other minerals where coal does not exceed 16 2/3 percent of tonnage of minerals removed for sale. Evidence of abuse of this exemption has been given to Congress by legitimate operators. Coal mine operators are using the exemption to avoid compliance with the Surface Mining Act's environmental protection performance standards. Proposed regulations would require operations claiming exemption to apply for exemption and report on their operations. The costs of compliance for these operations is undetermined. Benefits would be to the public in terms of protection of health, safety, and environment from detrimental effects of mining. Legitimate noncoal operators would be able to compete fairly with those operations now using the

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1202; 30 USC 1211; 30 USC 1278

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 707

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The current limiting language in 30 CFR Part 707 can have at least three adverse results for the Abandoned Mine Lands (AML) Program. The inability to remove incidental amounts of coal encountered during reclamation activities can result in: 1) the loss of a valuable energy resource, 2) a no-cost subsidy of a future mining operation, and 3) a windfall profit to the mineral owner. In addition, the Federal and State governments are unable to reduce the costs of their AML projects. Participation in the incidental recovery of coal and resulting reduction in reclamation costs would allow the Federal and State AML programs to accomplish more reclamation at a substantial saving. To correct these deficiencies and to allow greater flexibility for the AML Program to remove incidental amounts of coal encountered during AML-financed reclamation activities, the clarification and expansion of the scope of Part 707 is being proposed.

Abstract: The proposed rule would comply with a court order of the District Court for the District of Columbia which remanded OSM reporting requirements for surface coal exploration. The proposed rule would revise existing requirements to include the filing of a notice by all individuals or operators planning coal exploration, and specify the information required on applications for coal exploration. The obligation to report is a standing requirement of existing regulations. This rule would expand the requirement to report. Because affected States already have the expanded requirement in place, no additional costs or benefits are expected to be associated with the rule.

Abstract: In remanding Section 817.21(c)(2) for further comment following the Permanent Surface Mining Regulation Litigation II, the court also found that the 1979 rule requiring the subsidence control plan to include the results of the pre-subsidence survey and description of proposed monitoring measure were deleted in the 1982 proposed and 1983 final rule without adequate notice. Because this regulation related to Section 817.121(c)(2) concerning the protection of surface structures, the court ordered the Secretary to request additional public comments on this deletion in conjunction with the comments of 817.121(c)(2). No other alternative to the repromulgation of this rule is being considered because of the court order. Depending upon the number and types of comments received, this 1983 rule may or may not be changed. Consequently, the action's potential costs and benefits cannot be assessed.

1255. REQUIREMENT TO RELEASE PERFORMANCE BONDS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 800.40(a)(2)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would require that an applicant for bond release include the name of the permittee in the application. This action is being taken as a result of a commitment made during litigation on bonding requirements before the District Court for the District of Columbia where it was found that an explicit requirement for providing the name of the applicant was necessary. There will be no increase or decrease in the cost/benefits of this rule.

Abstract: The regulation will address the sections that were remanded back to OSM by the action of the Court. The regulation will provide additional guidance to the surface coal mine operator in fulfilling the performance standards of the Act. Costs will not be increased because the regulations will amplify existing requirements.

Abstract: This rule is being proposed in response to an order of the U.S. District Court remanding several aspects of OSM regulations concerning revegetation which has inadequate support in the administrative record. OSM will propose rules concerning replanting of trees as a normal husbandry practice, the period for revegetation success, and rills and gullies control as a normal conservation practice. Costs and benefits of this action have not been determined since the final scope of the rule is not certain. This analysis will be based in large part on public comments received on the proposed rule.

Abstract: The regulation will address the issue addressed in a district court challenge to OSM regulations. The rule will address the problem of combination spillways and will specify a spillway configuration that must be installed to safely pass the designed precipitation event. In some cases, the rule may allow one spillway to serve as a combination principal and emergency spillway. The proposed action may reduce costs in those cases where one spillway will safely pass the design precipitation event with no corresponding decrease in environmental protection.

1259. PERMANENT PROGRAM PERFORMANCE STANDARDS UNDERGROUND MINING ACTIVITIES SUBSIDENCE CONTROL

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 817.121(c)(2)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Following Permanent Surface Mining Regulation Litigation II, the court remanded portions of the subsidence control rule relating to the protection of surface structures and facilities to Office of Surface Mining to repromulgate the rule for notice and comment, holding that the final 1983 rule represents a radical change from the 1982 proposed rule. No other alternative to the repromulgation of the 1983 rule is being considered because of the court order. Depending upon the number and type of comments received the 1983 final rule relating to the protection of surface structures and facilities may or may not be changed. Consequently, the action's potential costs and benefits cannot be assessed.

Abstract: The rulemaking is in response to a challenge of this issue in District Court where the Office agreed to suspend 30 CFR 817.41(b)(2), concerning requirement to restore groundwater recharge capacity, and repromulgate the rule to develop the administrative records. OSM will propose two options: (1) removing 817.41(b)(2) and (2) retaining this paragraph while asking for comments concerning its legality, technological validity, and environmental impacts. Since this rule will be repromulgated with options, a determination of its potential costs and benefits cannot be assessed until comments are received and options chosen.

Abstract: These regulations are being revised as ordered by the District Court for the District of Columbia. They will amend OSM's permanent program performance standards with respect to prime farmlands by allowing last cut lakes to remain after mining is complete only where they are beneficial or necessary to agricultural activity and allowing for a support facility exemption only for underground mines. These changes are mandated by Court Order, thus, no alternatives to this action are being considered.

Abstract: This regulation addresses the result of a joint motion approved by the District Court for the District of Columbia on December 3, 1984. The final regulation will remove the definition of adverse physical impact; remove the limitations imposed by 30 CFR 816.106(b) and 817.106(b); and require that all reasonably available spoil in the immediate vicinity of the remining operation be used to backfill the highwall to the maximum extent technically practicable. In view of the joint motion this is the only alternative being considered. There will be little if any potential costs because of the very limited application of this rule. Therefore, benefits which will result will also be very limited. The proposed rule asks for public comment on this very issue.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Abstract: The proposed rule will amend the definition of the term support facilities as a result of the District Court for the District of Columbia's opinion of July 6, 1984. The proposed regulation would bring additional support facilities under the Permanent Program Regulations of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act and amend the definition of support facility to connote a functional relationship with a regulated facility. This proposed rule would impose only minor costs to the coal industry since relatively few operations will be affected.

Abstract: This rule is being proposed to eliminate an inconsistency between provisions of OSMRE regulations governing how far mining can occur from the banks of study rivers designated as such under the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act and guidelines of the National Park Service. 1269. CRITERIA FOR DESIGNATING AREAS AS UNSUITABLE FOR SURFACE COAL MINING OPERATIONS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 1201 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 762.5

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The objection to the definitions of the terms "fragile lands" and "historic lands" in 762.5 is their requirement that damage from proposed mining to historic and other values must be irreparable or permanent before lands can be classified as fragile or historic and therefore, eligible for consideration as being unsuitable for mining. The court order requires only a finding of significant damage, in accordance with Section 522(a)(3)(b) of the Act. In as much as the required wording "significant damage" is used in 762.11(b)(2) in the fragile-or-historic-lands criterion for designating lands as unsuitable, rather than using the wording of the two definitions, the proposed rule change would remove the degree-of-damage requirement from the definitions and thereby remove the wording objected to. In addition, the two terms would be combined into the one term "fragile or historic lands" that is used in the Act and also in 762.11(b)(2). The cost and benefits would remain unchanged because a finding of only significant damage and the combined term are already in place in 762.11(b)(2).

Abstract: The revised rule provides that the Director may request that a State initiate procedures to amend its reclamation plan and that the Director may establish, after consultation with the State, a timetable which is consistent with established administrative and legislative procedures in the State for submitting an amendment to the reclamation plan. Failure to amend the reclamation plan within the specified time could result in either the suspension of the AMLR Plan, reduction, suspension or termination of existing grants or the withdrawal from consideration of all future grant applications. States may have minor administrative costs in amending their approved reclamation plans. Benefits would include more efficient and cost effective reclamation procedures.

Abstract: Proposed regulations implementing Congressional amendment to Surface Mining Control Act that authorizes up to $3 million to States for the establishment of state administered self-sustaining subsidence insurance programs. If all eligible states avail themselves of the opportunity, the costs to the AML Reclamation Fund will be $69 million. Benefits are, if land is insured, approximately $100 million in savings to the AML reclamation program. If land is not insured, then the AML Trust Fund will lose up to a maximum of $69 million. The subsidence insurance program will result in considerable savings to home owners and commercial and industrial entities who will be able to insure their property from damage caused by subsidence in abandoned underground coal mines.

Abstract: Under the Reclamation Reform Act (RRA) of 1982, districts and individuals have the option of coming under the acreage limitation provisions of the new law or remaining subject to those of prior Reclamation law. Section 203(b) of the RRA provides that districts have 4 1/2 years from the date of enactment of the RRA to amend their existing repayment and water service contracts to come under the RRA provisions. After April 12, 1987, individuals in nonamending districts will be required to pay full cost for water supplied to leased land in excess of 160 acres.

The final rules published in December 1983 did not address implementation of section 203(b). The existing rules need to be revised in order to implement this provision, as required by law.

Legal Authority: 16 USC 1331 to 1340; 43 USC 1701 et seq

Abstract: This part will be revised in order to reorganize the regulations into a logical, consistent format and to remove needless self-regulation more appropriate for the Bureau Manual. In addition, related rules will be consolidated (aircraft and motor vehicles - 4730 and 4740; removal of horses and burros - 4720, 4740 and 4750), and rules which have no foundation in the law will be eliminated (problem animals - (4740.3(c); fencing of private land - 4750.3)). Procedures for adoption and title transfer will be clarified, and burdensome requirements for veterinarian certifications will be eased by canceling the requirement or allowing certification from any qualified official (4740.4-2 and 4740.5). The costs to those who choose to participate in the adoption program should be lessened by these revisions.

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 292.3; 8 CFR 3.1

Abstract: The contemplated regulation change would revise the procedure by which attorneys and representatives may be disbarred or suspended. It provides for a hearing and decision by an immigration judge, with appeal rights to the Board of Immigration Appeals and some limited review by the Attorney General. The change is desirable since it eliminates procedural entanglements between the Service and the immigration judges which exist in the current procedure.

This is designed to help assure the high quality of representation in immigration matters.

1337. MOTIONS TO REOPEN DEPORTATION PROCEEDINGS

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1103; 8 USC 1252

CFR Citation: 8 CFR 242

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The contemplated revision would delete the language allowing an application for adjustment of status under section 245 of the Immigration and Nationality Act, filed by itself, to be considered as a motion to reopen in deportation proceedings. The practice of allowing such applications to be treated as motions to reopen has resulted in confusion and administrative delay. This revision would treat motions to reopen for adjustment of status as any other motion to reopen. It is designed to eliminate the administrative difficulties involved with the filing of a bare adjustment of status application with no indication of whether or not it is a motion to reopen.

Abstract: The proposed regulation revisions would streamline the appeal procedure for this application by eliminating an appeal to the Board of Immigration Appeals following a denial of the waiver by an INS district director. The appeal to the Board of Immigration Appeals is retained in reviewing proceedings before immigration judges. The revision is designed to encourage speedy adjudication of Immigration and Nationality Act section 212(c) applications and economy of resources.

Semiannual Agenda of Regulations

AGENCY: Office of the Secretary, Labor.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda of regulations selected for review or development.

SUMMARY: This document sets forth the Department's Semiannual Agenda of Regulations which have been selected for review or development during the coming one-year period. The agenda complies with the requirements of both Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act.

DATES: The agenda includes all regulations which are expected to be under review or development between April 1986 and April 1987.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Roland G. Droitsch, Acting Deputy Assistant Secretary for Policy, Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy, Department of Labor, 200 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Room S-2233, Washington, D.C. 20210, (202) 523-8058.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act require the semiannual publication in the Federal Register of an agenda of regulations.

Executive Order 12291 became effective February 17, 1981, and in substance requires the Department of Labor to publish an agenda, listing all the regulations it expects to have under active consideration for promulgation, proposal or review during the coming one-year period. It also requires the Department to conduct a Regulatory Impact Analysis for all "major" regulations being developed.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act became effective on January 1, 1981. It applies only to regulations for which a notice of proposed rulemaking was issued on or after January 1, 1981, and requires the Department of Labor to publish an agenda, listing all the regulations it expects to propose or promulgate that are likely to have a "significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities" (5 U.S.C. 602). For any regulation that will have this impact, the Department must conduct a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis to gauge the economic consequences of the rule, and to analyze the availability of more flexible approaches for lightening the rule's regulatory burden on "small entities."

If a proposed regulation will not have a "significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities," the Department of Labor must publish a certification to that effect at the time of the general notice of proposed rulemaking or at the time of the publication of the final rule. That certification must be accompanied by a succinct statement explaining the reasons for the agency's determinations.

As permitted by law, the Department of Labor is combining in this publication its agendas under the Regulatory Flexibility Act and Executive Order 12291.

The regulatory reform process, of which the unified agenda is a part, continues to be an extremely valuable aid in the development of better regulations by the Department. We believe that our regulatory reform program has resulted in improved regulatory management, more clearly written regulations and significantly less burdensome regulations.

Further improvement is certainly needed, and we are constantly seeking new and innovative approaches in pursuit of this goal. All interested members of the public are invited and encouraged to let Departmental Officials know how our regulatory reform process can be further improved and, of course, to participate in and comment on the review or development of the regulations listed on the agenda.

William E. Brock,
Secretary of Labor.

1357. DEBT COLLECTION ACT REGULATIONS: SALARY OFFSET

Legal Authority: 5 USC 5514

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 20

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These regulations will implement the Debt Collection Act of 1982 (P.L. 97-365). The Debt Collection Act gives Federal agencies new tools to collect on debts owed to the United States. These include the authority of Federal agencies to offset the current pay account of an employee ("Salary Offset") when the employee owes money to the United States. These regulations will establish the policies and procedures the Department of Labor will use to implement a salary offset, in conformance with the Office of Personnel Management Regulations on this matter (49 FR 27470).

Legal Authority: 12 USC 3401 et seq Right to Financial Privacy Act of 1978

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 19, (New)

Abstract: These proposed regulations would authorize Department of Labor units to request financial records from a financial institution pursuant to the formal written request procedure established by the Right to Financial Privacy Act of 1978, 12 U.S.C. 3401 et seq., and would set forth the conditions under which such requests may be made. Section 1108(2) of the Right to Financial Privacy Act of 1978 requires that the formal written request be authorized by regulations promulgated by the head of the agency or department. These proposed regulations would thus, once implemented, enable Department of Labor units to utilize the formal written request procedure to obtain financial records.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 203

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 570

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 3(1) of the Fair Labor Standards Act requires the Secretary of Labor to issue regulations with respect to minors between 14 and 16 years of age ensuring that the periods and conditions of their employment do not interfere with their schooling, health, or well-being. Child Labor Regulation No.3 sets forth the permissible industries and occupations in which 14 and 15 year olds may be employed. In addition, this regulation specifies the number of hours in a day and in a week, and time periods within a day that such minors may be employed.

Changes in technology and job content over the years have expanded the types of employment which could be made available for 14 and 15 year olds. In order to increase job opportunities for such minors, while maintaining essential protection for their well-being, possible modifications to the regulation are being considered.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 213(a)(1)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 541

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These regulations set forth the criteria used in the determination of the application of the Fair Labor Standards Act exemption for "executive," "administrative," "professional" and "outside sales employees" from the minimum wage and overtime requirements of the Act. The existing regulation was targeted for review by the President's Task Force on Regulatory Relief. A final rule increasing the salary test criteria was published on 01/13/81 (46 FR 3010) and was scheduled to become effective on 02/13/81. On 02/12/81 (46 FR 11972) an indefinite stay of the final rule was published. On 03/27/81 (46 FR 18998) a proposal to suspend the final rule indefinitely was published with comments due by 04/28/81. As a result of numerous comments and petitions received from industry groups regarding the duties and responsibilities tests as set forth in the regulations, as well as recent case law developments, the Department concluded that a more comprehensive review of these regulations was needed and decided to reopen the comment period and broaden the scope of the review to include all aspects of the regulations. An ANPRM was published on 11/19/85 and its comment period was (cont'd)

Abstract: These regulations contain the basic standards governing the application of Section 3(m) of the FLSA, which provides that, under certain conditions, the reasonable cost or fair value of furnishing employees with board, lodging, or other facilities may be applied towards meeting the Act's minimum wage and overtime requirements. Section 3(m) also provides that tips received by certain employees may be credited towards the payments of the statutory minimum wage (up to a maximum of 40 percent). The changes under consideration would conform the regulations to legislative amendments, court decisions interpreting Section 3(m), and administrative experience related to enforcement of these provisions.

Legal Deadline: Judicial, October 1983. Rules implementing Section 461 of the 1982 JTPA are required to be published under the Act. The operational aspects of such rules need to be coordinated with the pending revisions discussed above, which has resulted in a delay.

Abstract: These provisions contain OFCCP's rules covering nondiscrimination and affirmative action obligations of covered contractors under EO 11246, the Vietnam Era Veterans Readjustment Assistance Act of 1974, and Sec. 503 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973. The rule would be revised to make them more cost effective, reduce paperwork burdens and assure that contractors hire the best qualified person regardless of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin. Proposed changes to the regulations were published in the Federal Register on 12/28/78 and 02/22/80, and a final rule on these issues was published on 12/30/80 (45 FR 86215). The rule was stayed and reviewed in accordance with the President's Executive Order 12291 of 02/17/81. An ANPRM was published on 07/14/81 (46 FR 36213) and supplemented on 08/21/81 (46 FR 42490) to elicit comments on several issues pertaining to the regulation. A notice of proposed rulemaking was published on 08/25/81 (46 FR 42968) with comments due by 10/26/81. The proposal suspended the effective date of the 12/30/80 regulation, and proposed revision of that regulation. A supplemental proposal was published 04/23/82 (47 FR 17770). A final (cont)

Abstract: These regulations govern labor standards applicable to federally funded or assisted construction contracts subject to the Davis- Bacon and Related Acts (as well as contracts subject to the Contract Work Hours and Safety Standards Act). The Department plans to implement provisions in these regulations that would permit contractors to expand their use of semi-skilled "helpers" on Davis-Bacon covered projects at wages lower than those paid to skilled journeymen. Revised final rules were originally published 05/28/82 (47 FR 23658), but were deferred on 07/26/83 (47 FR 32070) due to an injunction issued by the U.S. District Court. Although the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit has since upheld most of the key provisions published in 1982, the district court injunction remains in effect against certain provisions dealing with helpers. The Department intends to implement the helper provisions in accordance with the decisions of the district and appeals courts.

Abstract: The proposed rule would revise the role of the Small Business Administration (SBA) in determining a small business concern's eligibility as a "manufacturer" or "regular dealer" under the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act (PCA). Current procedures for small businesses require SBA review of all contracting agency findings of ineligibility, as well as all protests which challenge an agency's findings of eligibility. SBA did not have an opportunity to comment when the current rules were first adopted following enactment of the 1977 Amendments to the Small Business Act (P.L. 95-89, 91 Stat. 553 (15 USC 637(b)(7)(B)). SBA believes its review authority under the Act is restricted to only executive branch agency findings of noneligibility under PCA, and has requested revisions to the regulations which would eliminate SBA review in protest cases which challenge an agency's findings that a small business is eligible for award. Additional revisions requested by SBA would streamline the processing of cases between SBA and Wage Hour. (cont)

Additional Information: ABSTRACT CONT'D. An additional procedural change would discontinue the reporting requirement for federal contracting agencies to submit Standard Form (SF) 99, Notice of Award of Contract, to the Wage and Hour Division for contracts subject to the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act (PCA). A similar rule change was promulgated under the Service Contract Act (SCA) regulations (29 CFR 4.6) published October 27, 1983 (48 FR 49770). The reduced administrative burden for the affected procurement agencies resulting from the rule change under both SCA and PCA is expected to produce estimated annual cost savings governmentwide of nearly $410,000, the majority of which is attributable to PCA contract awards.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Abstract: These regulations establish the terms and conditions under which handicapped clients in sheltered workshops performing work subject to the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA), the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act, and the Service Contract Act may be employed, under certificate, at wage rates less than those otherwise required by these acts. The FLSA Amendments of 1966 substantially revised the provision of section 14(c) of the Act which authorizes such employment. The regulations have not been comprehensively revised since 1967 when they were revised to reflect the amendments. The Department is planning to issue an NPRM by 07/00/86.

Legal Authority: 20 USC 954(i) and (l); 20 USC 956 (g)

Abstract: The National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities Act of 1965, as amended in 1976, requires the Secretary to determine the prevailing minimum compensation for professional performers and related or supporting personnel employed on projects or productions assisted by grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and the National Endowment for the Humanities. As originally enacted, these labor standards only applied to the Arts; the existing regulations do not reflect the amendments which applied the same labor standards to the Humanities. The Arts, Humanities, and Museums Amendments of 1985, which were enacted on December 20, 1985, require the Secretary of Labor to issue regulations to assure that prevailing minimum compensation is provided to all professional performers and related or supporting professional personnel employed on projects or productions financed in whole or in part by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Abstract: 5 USC 8103(a) of the Federal Employees' Compensation Act provides that the United States shall furnish a broad range of medical services and supplies to employees of the United States injured in the performance of duty. ESA proposes to exercise its statutory authority to define the "reasonableness" of medical service costs and thereby monitor, and possibly reduce, these costs by imposing a schedule of allowable fees to be paid for services under this law. Abstract: The low volume of cases received under the Longshore Act and its extensions did not justify maintaining separate longshore district offices for the disposition of cases in the Denver and Kansas City regions. Therefore, these offices were closed and their workloads transferred to the Seattle and Chicago district offices, respectively. This rule formalizes these changes by making a technical amendment to 20 CFR 702.101 redefining the jurisdictions of the four affected district offices. Abstract: The Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act Amendments of 1984 were passed and signed into law on September 28, 1984 (P.L. 98-426). These amendments made many substantive changes to the Longshore Act (33 USC 901 et seq.), which were effective on the date of enactment, or 90 days thereafter. These regulations implement the changes made by the amendments, and make technical corrections in the unchanged sections of the regulations. The changes include an exemption from the Act's coverage for specified classes of workers, a certification procedure for exemption from coverage of certain small-vessel facilities, provisions allowing the Secretary to debar medical care providers and representatives for certain reasons, and revisions in the assessment formula for the program's Special Fund (for second injury coverage). Because of the statutory deadlines imposed, these regulations were published as interim final rules on January 3, 1985 with a comment period which was extended until March 22, 1985. The interim final rules remained in effect until 01/31/86, at which time they became final rules.

Alternatives being considered include: (1) Issuing a regulation, another type of directive, or nothing; (2) issuing particular rules for calculating Reed Act balances which reflect P.L. 97-348 restorations, Title XII advances, program income, and sales, other dispositions, and reduced usage of real and personal property, issuing alternative rules for calculating balances, or issuing no rules; (3) Issuing particular rules covering sales, other dispositions, and reduced usage of Reed Act property, issuing alternative property disposition rules, or issuing no rules. Issuing a regulation will benefit grantees by reducing the uncertainty as to the applicable rules. No significant additional costs will result.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 501 to 504; 42 USC 1302

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 601.5

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: States and other interested parties have questioned the adequacy of the existing method for financing and allocating SESA administrative resources in general and unemployment insurance (UI) administrative resources in particular. Problems identified include: (1) basis and methodology for allocating SESA administrative resources among States; (2) insufficient flexibility to meet State management needs; (3) excessive Federal intervention and prescription; (4) inadequate State accountability and authority; (5) disincentives for improving productivity; (6) inadequate resources for nonpersonal services. The framework for the basic UI system is outlined in the Social Security Act (SSA) and the Federal Unemployment Tax Act (FUTA). Title III of the SSA states that the Secretary of Labor shall provide the administrative funds needed by each State approved under FUTA for the proper and efficient administration of the UI program. A formal consultation process has been initiated to solicit public comments on problems and proposed changes to the current SESA administrative financial system. Planned (cont.)

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: Section 164 Job Training Partnership Act; Section 189 Job Training Partnership Act

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 629.42

Abstract: Governors are responsible for resolving audits of their JTPA subgrantees and subcontractors. Current ETA policy requires federal review and approval of these resolutions only in cases of fraud, gross mismanagement and abuse. More routine audit resolutions are only reviewed on a sample basis during onsite compliance reviews. However, a recent legal opinion stated that the JTPA regulations as presently written could be construed as requiring federal review and approval of all Governors' audit resolutions. The regulations may have to be amended in order to implement ETA's policy.

1386. AIRLINE DEREGULATION: EMPLOYEE BENEFIT PROGRAM

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1552

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 638

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These regulations are being developed to implement the benefit provisions contained in Sec. 43 of the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978. The Act requires the Secretary of Labor to specify the percentage of prior salary which an "eligible protected employee" would receive as a benefit payment under the Act. An eligible protected employee is a person who has had at least 4 years of employment with a certificated air carrier as of October 24, 1978 and who loses his or her job during the ten years following such date in a bankruptcy or major employment contraction if and only if the Civil Aeronautics Board determines that the principal causes of such job loss was deregulation. On May 17, 1984 the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia held that Section 43 of the Airline Deregulation Act was unconstitutional. On July 16, 1985, the U.S. Court of Appeals decided that the employee protection provisions of Section 43 were severable from the legislative veto provisions. However, further judicial action on other issues is likely before the Department can implement these regulations.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 3302; 42 USC 1302; PL 97-35, Sec 2408

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 608

Abstract: The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981 amended the tax credit provisions of FUTA to authorize the placing of a "cap" on reductions in tax credits on a State-by-State basis in certain prescribed circumstances. The amendment requires these determinations to be made in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary of Labor. The same Act also amended Title XII of the Social Security Act to assess interest on advances to States, the payment of which is prohibited from State unemployment funds. The proposal would implement these statutory changes.

Abstract: The establishment of a UI QC program is a major initiative to reduce administrative errors and claimant abuse in the UI system. Reported error rates are 10 times lower than those found under the QC sampling methodology. A one percent reduction in the error rate could potentially translate to a savings of millions of dollars in the benefit payment process. Additional savings may be realized when the program is extended to the revenue function.

1392. LABOR CERTIFICATION PROCESS FOR THE PERMANENT EMPLOYMENT OF ALIENS IN THE UNITED STATES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 8 USC 1182(a)(14)

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 656

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Physicians are currently on the Department's Schedule A precertification list if they are to be employed in a designated Health Manpower Shortage Area (HMSA) or an area which has an insufficient number of physicians as designated by the Public Health Service (PHS). The PHS has recommended removal of physicians from Schedule A, or in the alternative leave only those physicians on Schedule A that are to be employed in the HMSA's. According to the PHS: (1) neither Congress nor the Department of Health and Human Services recognizes the existence of a national shortage of physicians; (2) alien physicians after they are certified do not go to the HMSA's or the area with an insufficient number of physicians, or if they do go to these areas they leave shortly after starting work. Thus, the labor certification program has not had a significant effect in alleviating the shortage of physicians in the HMSA's or in the areas with an insufficient number of physicians. Consequently, ETA proposes to remove all physicians from Schedule A.

Abstract: The regulation will provide Work Incentive Program grantees and contractors administrative appeal rights before the Office of Administrative Law Judges for the following: (1) an adjustment in payment; (2) termination of the contract or grant; (3) a final determination disapproving outstanding claims arising from terminations, disapproving unreimbursed costs, or rejecting the termination settlement proposal; (4) a final determination disallowing costs as a result of an audit; and (5) a final determination disallowing costs resulting from the closing out of the grant/contract. Currently, no such rights exists and a grantee/contractor's only appeal forum is Federal Court. Provision of these hearing rights should reduce the workload of the Federal Court system and allow the Department of Labor to adjudicate the issues in a more informal setting with Administrative Law Judges, who are more accustomed to dealing with the particular issues involved. The regulations will also correct a perceived inequity since most Employment and Training Administration programs have administrative appeal rights.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: EO 12073; EO 10582

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 654.5(b)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Currently the Department of Labor only classifies civil jurisdictions (counties, cities over 50,000 population as well as townships and towns in certain selected States) as labor surplus areas. This policy has resulted in some employment centers in the nation's large metropolitan areas not being classified as labor surplus areas, even though the entire Metropolitan Statistical Areas or Primary Metropolitan Statistical Areas would meet the labor surplus area criteria if such geographic areas were classified. The proposed rule would grant the Assistant Secretary for Employment and Training the authority to classify Metropolitan Statistical Areas and Primary Metropolitan Statistical Areas as labor surplus areas to help alleviate unemployment in these areas. The change will add some additional labor surplus areas to the current list but it will not increase the funds going to such designated areas.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 19 USC 2320

CFR Citation: 20 CFR 617

Abstract: These regulations would implement the 1981 and 1983 amendments to the Trade Act of 1974. The Trade Adjustment Assistance program provides adjustment assistance, in the form of reemployment services, training, job search, relocation allowances, and cash benefits (adjustment assistance) to workers whose unemployment is linked to increased imports of foreign-made products. The amendments represent a fundamental shift in program emphasis from income maintenance to placement and employment services and benefits such as training, job search and relocation. The 1981 amendments are designed to assure that adjustment assistance and reemployment services are more appropriately targeted to trade impacted workers with emphasis placed on their return to work. The 1983 amendments extended the program to September 30, 1985. The 1984 amendments to the program are not included in these regulations but will be issued separately.

1402. TRADE ADJUSTMENT ASSISTANCE FOR WORKERS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 19 USC 2320

Abstract: This regulation would implement provisions of the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984 amending the Trade Act of 1974. The legislation amends Section 233(a)(3), to enable workers to collect the extra 26 weeks of Trade Adjustment Assistance (TRA) beginning with the first week the worker enters training if the training has not been approved until after the last week of entitlement to basic TRA. It also amends Sections 227 and 230 of the Trade Act to increase the maximum job search allowance to $600 (from $600) and the maximum lump-sum relocation allowance to $800 (from $600).(Since the proposed rule is supplemental to proposed rule at 28 CFR Part 635, the actual date of issuance of this rule as a final rule is dependent upon publication as a final rule of the amendments to The Trade Act of 1974 in Title XXV of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981 (Public Law 97-35).

Abstract: Current regulations state that when employers provide meals they may charge the worker no more than $4.00 per day. There are exceptions in cases where employers document costs exceeding $4.00 in support of higher meal charges. In such instances, a ceiling of $5.00 per day may be charged if approved by the RA. These charges were established in 1980, and do not reflect the higher costs for food that currently exist. ETA proposes to increase the amount employers can charge workers for three meals per day.

1423. APPROVAL CRITERIA FOR DIESEL-POWERED EQUIPMENT FOR UNDERGROUND COAL MINES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: Section 508 of the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act of 1977; 30 USC 801 et seq

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 36

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The atmosphere of underground coal mines contains methane gas which can quickly accumulate in explosive concentrations. To protect against gas ignitions and mine explosions, the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act of 1977 requires that mining equipment be built in accordance with certain performance standards. To administer these requirements, MSHA has established a mining equipment approval system, including evaluation criteria. At present, approximately 88 underground coal mines are using about 1100 pieces of diesel equipment. Existing MSHA approval criteria do not, however, apply to this equipment. Existing MSHA regulations (30 CFR 36) apply only to diesel equipment for noncoal mines and tunnels. MSHA has encouraged coal mine operators to voluntarily use diesel-powered equipment approved for noncoal mines. This effort has not been completely successful. Cost estimates have not been calculated. However, costs could arise from the purchase and maintenance of approved diesel equipment and for environmental controls. The major benefit would be increased productivity resulting from elimination of electric trailing cables, and increased (cont)

1424. APPROVAL CRITERIA FOR RESPIRATORY PROTECTIVE DEVICES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 957

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 11

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Under the 1977 Mine Act, MSHA and the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) jointly approve respirators for use in hazardous atmospheres. Recent problems in field use of respirators suggest that the present laboratory tests for respirators may not accurately predict their effectiveness during actual use. In addition, new technology has been developed which cannot be accommodated by the existing regulations. In determining alternatives, MSHA will first reexamine its role in the joint approval process. Under the existing procedures, most of the respirators approved are for non-mining applications. Therefore, MSHA will reassess the extent of its role in the approval process. Another alternative would be to replace federal testing with private sector testing according to federal specifications. Benefits could include improved respirators for field use and a faster approval process. However, the private sector testing alternative could be expected to raise costs for manufacturers because of market prices for testing products.

1427. PATTERN OF VIOLATIONS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 814(e); 30 USC 957

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 104

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The 1977 Mine Act provides for issuance of withdrawal orders to mines having a pattern of serious violations until the mine is completely free of such violations. A 1980 proposed rule would have set criteria for determining if a "pattern of violations" exists. Commenters generally opposed the proposal stating that it was complex, too statistically-oriented and vague. In addition, since the proposal was published, the statutory concept of "significant and substantial violations" (S&S) has been redefined by the Federal Mine Safety and Health Review Commission. S&S violations are a critical element in the statutory provisions. For these reasons, MSHA withdrew the 1980 proposal and issued an ANPRM that outlines new procedures for implementing the statutory provision for pattern of violations.

1437. UPDATING FEES ASSOCIATED WITH EQUIPMENT APPROVALS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 30 USC 957

CFR Citation: 30 CFR 11 to 33

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking would revise MSHA's existing system of charging fees for the testing, evaluation, and approval of products manufactured for use in mines. Most of the existing fees have not changed since 1965, and no longer reflect the cost to the government for providing the services involved. The rulemaking would establish a procedure for updating fees periodically to reflect the current cost of providing these services and would establish fees for services for which applicants currently are not charged.

Abstract: Before the 1978 Amendments to Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, Congress had not held Federal Agencies to the same standard of accessibility to which recipients of Federal assistance were held. This proposed regulation would not require DOL to take any action when it can demonstrate that taking such action would result in a fundamental alteration in the nature of a program or activity or in undue financial and administrative burdens. This regulation would require, however, that persons with handicaps, who are eligible for and who can achieve the purpose of a federally-conducted program or activity, be allowed access to that program or activity. Effective communication would also be required with applicants, participants, personnel, and members of the public that have impaired vision or hearing.

1450. CARCINOGEN POLICY

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 653; 29 USC 655; 29 USC 657

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1990

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Carcinogen Policy describes the criteria and procedures OSHA will use to identify, classify, and then regulate carcinogens. The Policy also establishes a process for screening chemicals and for setting priorities for potential rulemaking activities. The validity of the scientific criteria set forth in the policy and the cost-effectiveness of the rule are being reexamined. The original standard was issued in 1980 before the Supreme Court "benzene" decision on significant risk. Thereafter, a final rule deleting provisions of the Carcinogen Policy that were inconsistent with the benzene decision was published on 01/19/81 (46 FR 4889). A proposal was published on 01/23/81 (46 FR 7902) to permit alternatives to the risk analysis section of the carcinogen policy to be addressed. The proposal was withdrawn on 03/27/81 (46 FR 19000). An advance notice of proposed rulemaking was published on 01/05/82 (47 FR 187) with comments due by 04/05/82. That document also proposed to stay the publication of the candidate and priority lists. The final stay was published on 01/04/83 (48 FR 241). As part of its evaluation of the policy, OSHA is reviewing the public comments received in response (cont)

1451. 4,4'-METHYLENEDIANILINE

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b); 29 USC 657

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: Statutory, February 15, 1986. Under provisions of Section 9 of the Toxic Substances Control Act. OSHA must respond to EPA concerning its referral of a substance for regulatory action within the time period specified by the EPA Administrator.

Abstract: 4,4'-Methylenedianiline (MDA) is a chemical used primarily to manufacture methylenediphenyl diisocyanate, which is used to make polyurethane foams and elastomers. Recent scientific data indicate that MDA is a carcinogen in animals and a potential carcinogen in humans. In 1983, OSHA and the Environmental Protection Agency participated in a joint effort to publish an advance notice of proposed rulemaking to solicit information on MDA production and use, estimates of environmental and occupational exposure, and studies of it, toxic and carcinogenic effects. EPA has evaluated the data received in response to the advance notice and has concluded that the chemical presents an unreasonable risk of injury to the health of exposed workers. Under the provisions of section 9(a) of the Toxic Substances Control Act, EPA referred MDA to OSHA for action, giving OSHA 180 days to respond (due 1/5/86). OSHA responded to the EPA referral on 2/28/86. OSHA is in the process of establishing a mediated rulemaking advisory committee to participate in the development of a proposed regulation for MDA.

1452. ● MANUAL LIFTING (PART 1910)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Nation's number one injury problem is back injuries. These injuries account for one of five compensation claims and one of four dollars expended for compensation. The purpose of the proposed request for comments and information is to enable OSHA to determine a course of action—possibly either formal rulemaking or informal guidance-aimed at reducing the number of back-related injuries which result from improper manual lifting. The request will identify a number of approaches to improving manual lifting, and invite public comments and suggestions. Specific engineering and administrative controls should reduce the pain, suffering, and lost time of the workforce as well as reduce the associated economic costs.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b); 29 USC 657

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1000

Legal Deadline: None. There is no deadline unless EPA refers this substance to OSHA for action under Section 9 of TSCA.

Abstract: In July 1985, OSHA was petitioned by the United Automobile, Aerospace and Agricultural Implement Workers of America (UAW) to issue a hazard alert; issue an emergency temporary standard; and to begin work on a new permanent standard for methylene chloride (DCM). This request was based on information obtained from the Environmental Protection Agency and the National Toxicology Program indicating that DCM is an animal carcinogen and may have the potential to cause cancer in humans. In response to the UAW petition OSHA has announced that it will issue a set of DCM guidelines and is in the process of preparing an advance notice of proposed rulemaking. The Agency has not yet issued a decision concerning an emergency temporary standard.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1450

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Existing OSHA standards are designed to protect employees who are engaged in work involving exposure to only a few toxic chemicals during relatively standardized, continuous or repetitive processes. In contrast, laboratory workers are exposed to a multitude of toxic substances under frequently changing or unpredictable conditions. OSHA will examine whether prudent work practices and protective equipment, chosen for the specific facility and task, are more effective, feasible and economical for laboratory work than adhering to OSHA's current substance-specific exposure standards.

Abstract: The present respiratory protection standards have been in place for more than 10 years and do not take into consideration the current state-of-the-art for respiratory protection. In addition, the general industry standard for respirators contains redundancies and includes several advisory provisions which should be eliminated or changed. OSHA is reviewing the current standards and intends to propose revisions following its analysis of the standard and other comments and information received in response to the ANPRM published 05/14/82 and the preproposal draft that was circulated for comment in September 1985.

Abstract: On May 24, 1985, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit directed the Secretary of Labor to reconsider application of the Hazard Communication standard and to consider extending the application of the standard to employers in industries other than manufacturing unless he can state reasons why such application would not be feasible. Because the public rulemaking record for the Hazard Communication standard developed prior to OSHA's promulgation of the rule on November 23, 1983 does not contain sufficient information on industries other than those in the manufacturing sector, OSHA will begin rulemaking action to determine whether extension of the standard to cover other industry sectors is feasible.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1000(e); 29 CFR 1910.134(a)(1)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: OSHA's policy concerning the use of engineering controls and respirators was targeted for review by the President's Task Force on Regulatory Relief in 1981. Current OSHA regulations require that employers implement feasible engineering controls to maintain air contaminant concentrations in the workplace at or below the prescribed permissible exposure limits. The use of respirators is permitted only in those cases where engineering controls are not feasible, not yet installed, or not adequate. This policy has been criticized as being inflexible, not cost-effective, and often unnecessary for employee health protection. OSHA believes that any changes to the policy for use of engineering controls must be based on changes that are made to the respiratory protection regulations (29 CFR 1910.134). Proposals regarding revision of the methods of compliance policy will be made after OSHA has made decisions regarding revision of the respiratory protection regulations. Thus, no further regulatory action on this item is expected during the next six months.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910, Subpart H

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The present Subpart H, Hazardous Materials, standard is out of date and in some respects is oriented towards public safety and property protection. OSHA has been petitioned to cover many other hazardous materials operations where presently it has no standards. It is the purpose of this revision to consolidate the existing standards for flammable and compressed gases by providing general requirements and specific requirements for selected gases which warrant special attention due to their hazards and uses within the industrial environment. The overall intended effect of the revision is to update and simplify the existing requirements while enhancing employee safety and health.

Abstract: This proposal addresses various requirements in the General Industry standards (Part 1910) for either "safety testing" of certain workplace equipment and materials or the use of equipment/materials "certified for safety." It would include many self-regulatory and standards-developing efforts in the private sector and use already existing systems (in private sector or Government) for (1) the accreditation of testing laboratories and third-party certification programs, and (2) the certification for safety of workplace equipment. New Part 1936 would affect only applicants seeking system recognition by OSHA. New Part 1935 would contain those test methods/procedures already specified in OSHA standards or adopted through 6(b) rulemaking. Amended Part 1910 would (1) clarify employer responsibilities, (2) require valid test results or certifications, and (3) provide uniformity in OSHA terminology for several already-existing requirements and definitions. The remainder of Part 1907 would be revoked.

Abstract: OSHA has proposed to amend the existing standard for occupational exposure to benzene by reducing the permissible exposure limit from 10 parts benzene per million parts of air (10 ppm) to an eight-hour time-weighted average of 1 ppm and by adding appropriate industrial hygiene and medical surveillance provisions necessary for the protection of employee health. This action is based on OSHA's preliminary determination that the proposed standard is needed to reduce the risk of leukemia and other adverse health consequences of exposure to benzene.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910, Subpart I

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Existing standards do not contain criteria for personal fall protection systems. Consequently, requirements containing criteria for personal fall protection systems would be added to 29 CFR Part 1910; Subpart I, Personal Protection Equipment, to enhance employee protection from injury and death due to falls to different elevations.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.146

Abstract: Entry into confined spaces has been responsible for many employee deaths and injuries. 1470. LOGGING (PART 1910)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.266, (Revision)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Logging is a very hazardous industry. It has an incidence rate nearly twice that of manufacturing, and reflecting the seriousness of the injuries incurred, a lost workday rate nearly four times as high. The purpose of the standard will be to protect workers from the ever-present hazards of chain saw operation, falling objects (trees, branches), rolling or sliding logs, falls from trees, and materials handling accidents. At present there is no OSHA standard specifically applicable to logging in general. There is a standard, 29 CFR 1910.266, applicable only to pulpwood logging; however, pulpwood logging is estimated to account for less than half of the logging activity in the United States. Development of a national OSHA standard addressing all types of logging will provide coverage for those loggers not now protected. The new regulation will provide coverage where there is no approved state regulation and will set a minimum safety level for those states that chose to develop a state regulation.

1471. CONTROL OF HAZARDOUS ENERGY SOURCES (LOCKOUT/TAGOUT) (PART 1910)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.147, (New)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed standard will fill a major gap in our current regulations which now depend for enforcement on the general duty clause, 5(a)(1). It will apply to those situations where the unexpected energization, start up or the release of stored energy would cause injury to employees. Providing comprehensive and uniform control procedures is also expected to reduce significantly the potential for injury and death of employees because the hazards targeted for control exist in virtually every workplace. Further, the proposed standard will respond to the concerns of organized labor who petitioned OSHA in 1979 and again in 1982 for regulatory action to protect employees and to the American National Standards Institute's petition for OSHA to adopt its consensus standard ANSI Z244.1-1982. Regulatory options involve developing a comprehensive standard covering all potentially hazardous energy sources or limiting the scope and application to those certain machines or industries that are causing most of the injuries.

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.16; 29 CFR 1918, (Revision)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The purpose of this regulatory action would be to update and revise a standard first issued in 1960. The current language in many instances addresses the hazards to cargo handling involving methods long since abandoned, and fails to address the serious hazards of newer methods. Because so much of the current standard is out of date, compliance is minimal. These revised guidelines will provide both employers and employees with a blueprint for effective and safe workpractices in the cargo handling industry.

No other alternative other than revision is contemplated. The current standard is too outdated to serve as a basis for increased consultation, training or education. The annual cost of the revision is expected to be minimal – less than five million dollars.

Abstract: The use of stairways and ladders during construction can be extremely hazardous for employees. OSHA presently has regulations covering the construction, use, and maintenance of stairways and ladders, used on construction worksites. However, this NPRM has been developed to streamline those requirements and to reduce the number of accidents that result from insufficient fall protection provisions. Data to determine the potential costs and benefits from this rulemaking are currently being collected and analyzed by OSHA's Office of Regulatory Analysis. (Subpart X)

Abstract: A major area of coverage not addressed in the current OSHA electrical standards for general industry (29 CFR 1910) involves the maintenance and operation practices associated with electrical transmission and distribution lines, substations and generating stations. Abstract: Studies indicate adverse health effects in humans and animals exposed to airborne formaldehyde at concentrations permitted by OSHA's present standard. In humans, formaldehyde causes reversible sensory irritation of the eyes, nose, and throat of some persons at concentrations of about 1 ppm. As concentration increases, the prevalence and severity of effects increase. A chronic study in animals suggests that formaldehyde may also pose a carcinogenic risk since a statistically significant excess risk of cancer occurred at 5.6 and 14.3 ppm, and benign tumors and cytotoxic changes occurred at 2 ppm. This information indicates that the present OSHA standard for formaldehyde may need revision. In an April 17, 1985, Federal Register notice, OSHA announced its intention to initiate rulemaking on formaldehyde. On December 10, 1985, OSHA published a proposed standard.

Proposed Rule Stage

Abstract: As the shipbuilding and ship repairing industries (SIC 37) are covered under the scope of the Hazard Communication Standard (29 CFR 1910.1200), duplication of regulations exist due to similar requirements in Section 1915.97 dealing with hazardous materials. This action would eliminate this duplication by deleting from 29 CFR 1915.97 those regulations dealing with hazardous materials and adopting the Hazard Communication Standard. This would also eliminate the mandatory use of the OSHA Form 20 (MSDS). To provide equal protection to all shipyard employees, shipbreaking (SIC 44) is also included in this action.

Abstract: Recent scientific studies have reported that ethylene dibromide causes cancer when administered orally, by inhalation and by skin application in laboratory animals. In addition, other studies have shown the chemical to be a mutagen, teratogen and testicular toxin in experimental animals. On the basis of these reports, OSHA has determined that its current permissible exposure limit of 20 ppm does not provide exposed workers adequate protection against cancer and other adverse health effects. A proposed standard for ethylene dibromide was published 10/07/83 (43 FR 45956). Public hearings were held in February 1984. OSHA is currently in the process of decisionmaking on the provisions to be included in the final standard.

Abstract: The regulation, promulgated in May, 1980 (45 FR 35212), requires employers to preserve and maintain exposure and medical records pertinent to an employee's occupational exposure to toxic substances, and to assure access to these records by employees, designated employee representatives, and OSHA. OSHA has reviewed the regulation and has proposed certain modifications including revision of the definitions of "toxic substance" and "exposure records", changes in the scope and application of the regulation and additional trade secret protection provisions. OSHA is currently reviewing the information received and developing a final standard.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b); 40 USC 333

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1001

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: OSHA has announced its intention to revise this standard because data indicate that the present OSHA permissible exposure limit (PEL) may not adequately protect workers from asbestos-related diseases. The revision will include a change in the PEL and other appropriate modifications. On November 4, 1983, OSHA published an Emergency Temporary Standard (48 FR 51086) which immediately reduced the PEL to 0.5 fibers/cc. The ETS was challenged in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 5th Circuit, and was stayed pending judicial review on 11/23/83. The review was completed on 3/7/84. At that time the Appeals Court held the ETS to be invalid and ordered enforcement of the ETS permanently stayed. OSHA has published a proposal to revise the current standard on 04/10/84 (49 FR 4116). Public hearings were held in June 1984. OSHA is in the process of analyzing all of the information contained in the rulemaking record prior to making a decision regarding the provisions to be included in the final standard.

Abstract: The use of cranes and derricks to suspend personnel in platforms is a hazardous operation that is not currently covered by OSHA Construction Standards. OSHA has issued administrative instructions on this practice, but this alternative to rulemaking has not been successful. This NPRM has been developed to reduce the number of accidents, many of which involve multiple fatalities, that result from equipment inadequacies and failures or improper work practices. Data to determine the potential costs and benefits from this rulemaking are currently being collected by OSHA's Office of Regulatory Analysis.

Abstract: This regulatory action will remove an existing provision which prohibits presence sensing device initiation of mechanical power presses, and will add provisions which will enable the presence sensing device initiation to be done safely. Presence sensing device initiation has been identified as presenting potential increases in safety and productivity with an ergonomic advantage of less worker fatigue. A preliminary regulatory impact analysis has been completed. It is estimated that the discounted savings over the first 10 years the standard will be in effect will be approximately $535 million.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b); 29 USC 657

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1200

Abstract: On May 24, 1985, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit directed the Secretary of Labor to reconsider the definition of "trade secret" in the Hazard Communication Standard, and to extend access to trade secrets to employees and collective bargaining agents. The purpose of this action is to respond to the Court's direction, and make appropriate modifications to the final rule. Potential costs of these modifications are not known yet, but will be assessed as the rule is developed. OSHA has published two documents addressing the required modifications to the trade secrets provisions of the Hazard Communication Standard as well as extending access to trade secret information to occupational health nurses in non-emergency situations. Nurses were not originally included among the health professionals entitled to access and the Agency has determined that since the rule is being modified to permit employees and designated representatives access, it would also be appropriate to modify the rule to ensure nurses can obtain such information. A final determination on this issue will be published together with that prepared on the issues raised by the Court.

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1910.1043

Abstract: This standard, issued in 1978, was challenged in the courts and had been stayed as it applied to certain industrial sectors. In addition, where the standard was in effect, there were problems with the device used to measure cotton dust, some control methods specified by the standard were not cost-effective, and there were questions concerning the significance of the risk in some industry sectors. Data were collected to determine how and to what extent the standard should be revised. Two ANPRMs were published (03/31/81 and 02/09/82). A proposal to revise the standard was published on 06/10/83. Public hearings were held during September/October 1983. Following an analysis of the public record in this proceeding, OSHA published a final rule on December 13, 1985.

1506. LEAD - RECONSIDERATION OF WHOLE STANDARD

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655(b)

Abstract: The current standard for occupational exposure to lead was promulgated in 1978. It sets a PEL of 50 micrograms of lead per cubic meter of air (50 ug/m3), and requires the use of feasible engineering or workpractice controls. There are serious questions concerning significant risk, feasibility and cost-effectiveness of the standard in certain industries; therefore, OSHA has announced its intention to review and reconsider the regulation.

Legal Authority: 29 USC 655 (Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970); 33 USC 941 (Longshoremen's and Harborworkers Compensation Act)

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1915

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The purpose of this action would be to place unrevised in Part 1915, all OSHA Part 1910 General Industry Standards that are not now located in Part 1915, but that relate to the work undertaken in shipyard employment, thereby creating a vertical standard.

The Action is essentially only bookkeeping, i.e., moving standards, unchanged from one location in the CFR to another -- from Part 1910 to Part 1915. It can therefore be done without a proposed rule, and will be published as a final rule. It will end the long standing confusion over the application of OSHA standards to this industry among employers, employees, and OSHA compliance steff.

These are existing standards, there are no potential costs. This inclusion project will be coordinated with the project designed to revise Part 1915.

1512. FOREIGN MISSIONS ACT REGULATIONS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 22 USC 4301 et seq; 22 USC 254(e)

CFR Citation: 22 CFR 151

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Foreign Missions Act creates certain authorities for the Secretary of State relating to the regulation of foreign missions, diplomatic, consular, and international organizations. Exercise of these authorities could involve restricting or controlling the access of such missions to American vendors of goods and services. Exercise of other authorities in the Foreign Missions Act could affect the location of premises of foreign missions. Exercise of authority in the Diplomatic Relations Act, 22 USC 254(a) et seq., as amended by Title VI of P.L. 98-164, will have an impact on the acquisition of liability insurance coverage for the operation of motor vehicles, vessels, and aircraft by personnel of foreign missions, and could in certain situations, subject foreign missions to surcharges or fees. The regulations under consideration would provide procedures for exercise of these authorities. These regulations are at the stage of preliminary consideration. No timetable has been established other than that established in Title VI of P.L. 98-164.

1513. IMPLEMENTATION OF 1980 HAGUE CONVENTION ON THE CIVIL ASPECTS OF INTERNATIONAL CHILD ABDUCTION

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: None, until passage of treaty

CFR Citation: 22 CFR Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The 1980 Hague Convention provides for the prompt return of children habitually resident in one contracting State who have been wrongfully abducted to another, including wrongful retention by a non-custodial parent.

If the United States ratifies the Convention and Congress enacts the federal legislation, the Bureau of Consular Affairs will be tasked by executive order to serve as U.S. central authority (CA) under the Convention. Thus it will receive applications for the return of children wrongfully abducted to or retained in the United States. In conjunction with cooperating authorities in the U.S. State where the child is believed to be located, the CA's task will include seeking to locate the child, facilitating the initiation of a court action to require the child's return, arranging for the provision of information about the child's circumstances in the country of its habitual residence, and arranging for the child's return transportation if return is ordered. The President transmitted the Convention to the Senate for its advice and consent to ratification on October 30, 1985 (Senate Treaty Document 99-11).

1515. GUIDELINES FOR EXTRAORDINARY PROTECTION OF FOREIGN MISSIONS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 22 USC 4314; PL 99-93, Sec 126

CFR Citation: 22 CFR Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In some cases where the Secretary of State has requested extraordinary protective services, such as fixed guardposts at a building or residence, or dedicated bodyguard protection for a foreign official who has been specifically threatened, some local authorities have either declined or been unable to provide such protection.

Through the Foreign Missions Act and the Foreign Missions Act Amendments of 1985, Congress has authorized the Secretary of State to provide, among other benefits, protective services to foreign missions. Thus, the Secretary may arrange with State and local authorities for extraordinary protection for foreign officials where necessary, either by request of local authorities or on the Secretary's initiative.

For fiscal year 1986, $2.5 million has been provided in addition to amounts for reimbursement to New York, a program previously administered by the Treasury Department.

Background

Improvement of government regulations is a prime goal of the Reagan Administration. There should be no more regulations than necessary, and those that are issued should be simpler, more comprehensible, and less burdensome. Regulations should not be issued without appropriate involvement of the public; once issued, they should be periodically reviewed and revised, as needed, to assure that they continue to meet the needs for which they originally were designed.

To help the Department of Transportation ("Department") achieve these goals, and in accordance with Executive Order 12291 ("Federal Regulation"; 46 FR 13193; February 19, 1981) and the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures (44 FR 11034; February 26, 1979), the Department prepares a semiannual Regulatory Agenda for publication in the Federal Register. The Agenda summarizes all current and projected rulemaking, reviews of existing regulations and completed actions of the Department. These are matters on which action has begun or is projected during the succeeding twelve months or such longer period as may be anticipated or for which action has been completed since the last Agenda.

The Agendas are based on reports submitted by the initiating offices in January and July each year. After these reports are consolidated for, and reviewed by, the Department Regulations Council, the Department's Regulations Agenda is prepared and published in the Federal Register. The Department's last Agenda was published in the Federal Register on October 29, 1985 (50 FR 44348). The next one is scheduled for publication in the Federal Register in October 1986.

Regulatory Flexibility Act

In 1980, Congress passed the Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA), Pub. L. 96-354, which requires the designation of those regulations for which a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis will be prepared, i.e., those regulations that would have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. The heading "Small Entity" will indicate whether a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis is required by a "yes" or a "no." If a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis will be prepared for a particular rulemaking, that fact also will be noted under the heading "Analysis."

The RFA also requires that each year the Department publish a list of those regulations that have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities and are to be reviewed under the Act during the succeeding twelve months. The Agenda includes those regulations to be reviewed under the RFA or those for which review has been concluded since the last Agenda. A "yes" or "no" will be found under the heading "small entity," for each such regulation. It should be noted, however, that after a preliminary assessment of the regulations listed for RFA review, it may be found that the regulations, in fact, do not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities and a full RFA review will be unnecessary.

Definitions

DOT

The Agenda covers all rules and regulations of the Department, including those that establish conditions for financial assistance. The following definitions are provided for ease in understanding the information in this document.

(1) Initiating office means an operating administration or other organizational element within the Department, the head of which is authorized by law or delegation to issue regulations or to formulate regulations for issuance by the Secretary.

(2) Significant regulation means a regulation that is not an emergency regulation and that in the judgment of the head of the initiating office, or the Secretary, or the Deputy Secretary

(a) Is a major regulation;

(b) Concerns a matter on which there is substantial public interest or controversy;

(c) Has a major impact on another operating administration or other parts of the Department or other Federal Agency;

(d) Has a substantial effect on State and local governments;

(e) Has a substantial impact on a major transportation safety problem;

(f) Initiates a substantial regulatory program or change in policy;

(g) Is substantially different from international requirements or standards; or

(h) Otherwise involves important Department policy.

(3) Major regulation means a significant regulation for which a Regulatory Impact Analysis is required to be prepared.

(4) Emergency regulation means (a) a regulation that, in the judgment of the head of the initiating office, circumstances require to be issued without notice and opportunity for public comment or made effective in less than 30 days after publication in the Federal Register; or (b) is governed by short-term statutory or judicial deadlines.

(5) Nonsignificant regulation means a regulation that, in the judgment of the head of the initiating office, is neither a significant nor an emergency regulation.

A preliminary and final Regulatory Impact Analysis is required for each proposed and final regulation, respectively that

(1) Is likely to result in:

(a) An annual effect on the economy of $100 million or more;

(b) A major effect on the general economy in terms of costs, consumer prices, or production;

(c) A major increase in costs or prices for consumers; individual industries; Federal, State, or local government agencies; or geographic regions;

(d) Significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets; or

(2) The Secretary or head of the initiating office determines such an analysis.

Explanation of Information on the Agenda

The format for this Agenda is required by Office of Management and Budget Bulletin No. 86-4 (December 23, 1985).

First, the Agenda is divided by initiating offices. Then, in accordance with the OMB Bulletin, for each initiating office the Agenda is divided into four categories: (1) prerule stage, (2) proposed rule stage, (3) final rule stage, and (4) completed actions. For each entry, the Agenda provides the following information: (1) the "significance" of the action (i.e., whether it is significant because it is on the Regulatory Program or because of agency priority; or whether it is nonsignificant or routine and frequent; (2) a short descriptive title; (3) the legal basis for the action being taken or the regulation being reviewed; (4) the related regulatory citation in the "Code of Federal Regulations"; (5) an indication of any legal deadline; (6) an abstract of the review or the proposed or final regulation; (7) a timetable, including the earliest expected date for a decision on whether to issue the proposed or final regulation, or complete the review and determine the corrective action to be taken. (The action taken can be revocation or revision of the regulation, or it can be a determination that no regulatory action is necessary because the regulation is found to be achieving its goals and the goals and objectives of Executive Order 12291 and the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures.); (8) a statement as to whether the Regulatory Flexibility Act applies because of the rulemaking's effect on small entities; (9) if there is information that does not fit in the other categories, it will be included under a separate heading, entitled "Additional Information"; (10) a listing, where determined, of any analyses an initiating office will prepare or has prepared for the rulemaking document; e.g., a Regulatory Impact Analysis or Evaluation, an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS), a Regulatory Flexibility Analysis, or an Urban Impact Analysis. (It should be noted that, even though a Regulatory Impact Analysis is not required for some items on the Agenda, the Department requires an economic analysis for all of its regulations. This economic analysis is contained in the Regulatory Evaluation if a Regulatory Impact Analysis is not prepared); (11) an agency contact office or official who can provide further information, including advice on how to obtain documents referenced in the Agenda; and (12) a "RIN" number assigned solely to identify an individual action in the Agenda.

For nonsignificant regulations issued routinely and frequently as a part of an established body of technical requirements (such as the Federal Aviation Administration's Airspace Rules) to keep those requirements operationally current, only the general category of the regulations, the identity of a contact office or official, and an indication of the expected number of regulations are included; individual regulations are not listed.

If a regulatory docket number has already been established, it may be provided under the "Additional Information" heading. If a member of the public desires further information regarding a particular proposal or regulation, reference should be made to this docket number.

In the "Timetable" column, abbreviations are used to indicate the particular documents being considered for issuance by that date. ANPRM stands for Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, SNPRM for Supplemental Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, NPRM for Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, and FR for Final Rule. Listing a future date in this column is not an indication that a proposed or a final rule will be issued on that date; it is the earliest date on which a decision is expected to be made on whether to issue the document listed.

UMI

VOL 51 ISS 76 AP 21 1986 UMI

Submittal of any proposed or final rule to the Office of Management and Budget for review, under Executive Order 12291, must follow such a decision. For major rules, this review could take 80 days or more. If any document is issued, publication in the Federal Register would follow within a few days. In addition, these dates are based on current schedules. Information received subsequent to the issuance of this Agenda could result in a decision not to take regulatory action or in changes to proposed publication dates. For example, the need for further evaluation could result in a later publication date; evidence of a greater need for the regulation could result in an earlier publication date.

Finally, a dot (•) preceding an entry indicates that the entry appears in the Agenda for the first time.

Mailing Lists for Regulatory Documents

To assist the public in obtaining regulatory documents issued within the Department of Transportation, an Appendix A has been included in this document. The appendix contains instructions on how to be placed on mailing lists for copies of regulatory documents, including the Department's Semiannual Regulations Agenda, issued by the operating administrations of the Department and the Office of the Secretary. There is no charge for this service; however, because of the costs involved, the number of copies of a document forwarded to an individual requestor may be limited. Persons already on mailing lists for particular documents within the Department will remain on those lists and should not reapply.

By following the instructions specified in the appendix, a person can be placed on a mailing list for future copies of the Department's Regulations Agenda, which will be updated and published in the Federal Register every year during April and October. By using the Agenda, individuals can determine which Notice or Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, to be issued by elements of the Department, is of interest to them. Then, using the instructions in the appendix, such persons also can be placed on a mailing list to ensure that, after the document of interest is issued, a copy will be mailed to them for their review and comment. In this way, individuals will be relieved of the burden of having to review the Federal Register, perhaps on a daily basis. The Department expects that this process will ensure that those people placed on mailing lists will receive early notice so that their views on the document can be adequately prepared and presented within the established comment period.

General Rulemaking Contact Persons

To assist persons desiring to obtain general information concerning the rulemaking process within the Department's operating administrations, an Appendix B has been added to the Agenda. This appendix sets forth the addresses and the telephone numbers of the persons who can respond quickly to requests for general rulemaking information. Please note, however, that questions related to particular rulemaking actions should still be referred to the contact person listed with the particular rulemaking on the Agenda.

Public Rulemaking Dockets

To facilitate the inspection of docket files and the submission of comments by the public, an Appendix C sets forth the addresses and working hours for the Rules Docket for each operating administration.

Request for Comments

Agenda

Our Agenda is intended primarily for the use of the public. Since its inception, we have made modifications and refinements that we believe provide the public with more helpful information as well as make the Agenda easier to use. We would also like you, the public, to make suggestions or comments on how the Agenda could be further improved. For example, do you find the information presented in an easily understandable manner? Do you find it easy to follow a regulation's development from Agenda to Agenda? Do you find that the format for setting out the information enables you to use the Agenda easily? Do you find that the explanation of the information in the Agenda is clearly explained in the preamble to the Agenda? Your responses to these questions or any other comments or suggestions you may have should be sent to Neil R. Eisner, whose address appears above.

Reviews

In an effort to comply further with the spirit of Executive Order 12291 and the Regulatory Flexibility Act, we are also seeking suggestions on existing regulations that should be included in our review of existing regulations list; that is, which existing regulations issued by an operating administration of the Department or the Office of the Secretary do you believe need to be reviewed to determine whether they should be revised or revoked? The Department is particularly interested in obtaining information on requirements that have a "significant economic impact on small entities" and therefore, must be reviewed under the Regulatory Flexibility Act. If you have any suggested regulations, please send them, along with your explanation of why they should be reviewed, to the concerned operating administration or the Office of the Secretary, at the appropriate address noted in the "Addresses" paragraph above.

In accordance with the Regulatory Flexibility Act, comments are specifically invited on regulations that are targeted for review under the RFA. Those comments should be addressed to the "contact" person of the operating administration involved, at the appropriate address noted in the "Addresses" paragraph above.

Purpose

The Department is publishing this Regulations Agenda in the Federal Register to share with interested members of the public the Department's preliminary expectations regarding its future regulatory actions. This should enable the public to be more aware of the Department's regulatory activity. Knowledge of the nature and scope of this activity, as well as the specific proposals and reviews being considered, should result in more effective public participation in the Department's regulatory activity. For example, awareness of the dates when notices may be issued seeking public comment should allow appropriate planning and more efficient use of the comment period. By providing the expected date for a decision on whether to issue a final rule, the Department expects that more appropriate planning by those concerned with the regulation will also be possible. This publication in the Federal Register does not impose any binding obligation on the Department, or any of the offices within the Department, with regard to any specific item on the Agenda or the Review List. Regulatory action in addition to the items listed is not precluded. If further information is desired on any of the items listed in the Agenda or the Review List, the public is encouraged to contact the individual listed for the particular item. Additional information concerning the Agenda, in general, or the Department's Regulatory Policies and Procedures may be obtained from Neil R. Eisner, whose address and telephone number appear above.

Issued in Washington, D.C. on March 12, 1986.

Elizabeth Hanford Dole,

Secretary of Transportation.

as those that impose an unnecessarily high cost or those with paperwork burdens that can be reduced or which involve a level of benefits or costs which are either higher or lower than necessary. The review will examine all alternatives, from strengthening a given rule to eliminating it. Non-regulatory approaches, including the supplying of information by the government, or regulation by another level of government, will be also considered. The benefits and costs will be known only after these alternatives have been developed. This review is a priority because it involves important departmental policy.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 98-575

CFR Citation: Not applicable

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The rulemaking addresses the development of technical standards for commercial launch site operations and the appropriate regulatory framework for issuing licenses authorizing such operations. In its initial stages the rulemaking will focus on identifying the basic safety elements associated with site operations, determining the degree to which safety operations can effectively be conducted by private entities, identifying the appropriate factors to consider in reviewing site proposals, and developing the standards to be applied in determining whether to approve such proposals.

This rule is significant because it is included in the Department's Regulatory Program.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 399

Abstract: Republic Airlines petitioned the CAB for emergency rulemaking and other relief concerning changes in carrier interline practices. It stated that a number of major carriers have withdrawn from the current multilateral interline traffic agreement and henceforth will maintain interline arrangements only pursuant to bilateral agreements that are terminable monthly without notice. It alleged that failure to notify passengers that interlining may cease abruptly and without notice could constitute an unfair or deceptive practice within the meaning of section 411 of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958. In addition, it argued that the right to terminate interline agreements without notice could be used for anticompetitive purposes. Republic asked the CAB to adopt interim rules requiring notice to passengers and to institute a rulemaking proceeding to determine whether these no-notice bilateral interline agreements are an unfair method of competition. The CAB denied the request for emergency rules. DOT is now considering the subject of interlining and whether to begin a rulemaking proceeding. Significance: Regulatory Program

CFR Citation: 00 CFR None

Abstract: Transamerica petitioned the CAB to investigate ways to protect consumers against service defaults by scheduled air carriers in domestic, overseas, and foreign air transportation. Transamerica suggested that the Board condition the award of operating authority to perform direct carrier scheduled service on air carriers developing a default protection plan. For foreign air travel, it suggested that the obligation be limited to outbound flights. The petitioner argued that prompt action is necessary in order to ensure continued public confidence in scheduled air service and to protect passengers from unnecessary financial hardship. DOT is considering what action should be taken on the petition.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 399

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: TWA petitioned the CAB to establish an expanded policy of international cargo rate flexibility by which carriers would file for expedited effectiveness certain increased cargo rates on inbound traffic to the United States. The rate changes involved would be currency-related adjustments that carriers file in response to foreign government orders. TWA stated that this change is needed so that airlines are not exposed to penalties for failing to comply with foreign government directives. In addition, it argued that protracted review of these filings has a severe impact on airline revenues because an airline cannot change its tariffs to reflect currency devaluations. DOT is considering what action to take in response to this petition.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1373

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 221

Abstract: DOT will examine whether conversion from a paper document system to a computerized system of filing and monitoring air carrier tariffs can reduce paper flow, speed up processing, and allow the industry to utilize computer and telecommunications technology to communicate with DOT. The alternative is to maintain the current paper tariffs system. Potential savings to the industry may be greater than to the government, since airlines already utilize automated fare and rate systems. In addition, airlines may be able to implement changes faster, thus responding more quickly to market conditions, and may be less burdened with the cost of producing and transmitting paper documents. The Department may reduce paper flow, experience savings in processing time and staffing, and improve the accuracy and control of tariff data.

Abstract: The Department is reviewing its regulation establishing a minority business enterprise (MBE) program in its financial assistance programs (49 CFR Part 23). This regulation has been controversial, is of interest to most DOT grant recipients and contractors, and affects the operations of all DOT financial assistance programs. As part of the Administration's program of reviewing regulations that are costly or controversial, the Department has decided that it is necessary to consider revisions of the existing rule. The aim of the revisions would be to reduce regulatory burdens associated with the present rule and clarify the administration of some provisions about which questions have been raised. On the basis of this review, the Department intends to publish from time to time, proposed rules to improve various aspects of the way the program is administered. This review is to improve the administration of the existing program, and it is not intended to affect the major policy provisions of the regulation.

Abstract: The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) has a regulation providing protection of the rights of handicapped air travellers. Based on recent Congressional action, DOT began enforcing this regulation on January 1, 1985. DOT has prepared and transmitted to the Department of Justice, for review under E.O. 12250, an NPRM that would extend to passengers on all airlines the provisions of subparts B and C of the rule, which now apply only to subsidized carriers. This NPRM would also respond to the decision of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit in Paralyzed Veterans of America v. Civil Aeronautics Board, which said that Section 504 applied to all air carriers, whether or not they receive a direct Federal subsidy.

Abstract: The proposed rule would, if finalized, automatically revoke the authority of carriers who do not begin operations within one year of being found fit or who, having begun and then ceased operations, remain dormant for any subsequent one-year period. The rule would be in substitution for the existing continuing fitness regulation, which calls for new fitness determinations only after a two-year period of dormancy—and even then, only if a dormant carrier actually intends to start operations. The new rule, by reducing the number of dormant certificated carriers, should greatly enhance our ability to monitor carriers under the continuing fitness function. The costs should be negligible because, under the Department's streamlined certification procedures, carriers needing to reapply for certificate authority by virtue of the rule would face filing requirements and procedures closely comparable to those that already exist under the Department's current continuing fitness regulations.

Abstract: The proposed regulation would set forth requirements and procedures for all State Departments of Transportation (DOTs) equal employment opportunity compliance programs. It would also consolidate FHWA, FRA, and UMTA responsibilities in this area. This proposed regulation is significant because it would affect the equal opportunity employment programs of all State transportation agencies. It is needed because OST, FHWA, FRA, and UMTA each have responsibility for implementing the equal employment opportunity programs of State DOTs. This proposed rule would assure full coordination among these departmental elements, reduce the burden on the recipients, simplify reporting requirements, and eliminate duplication of effort.

1533. OVERSEAS MILITARY PERSONNEL AIR CHARTER TARIFFS

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1373; 49 USC 1386

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 372

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The reference to tariffs in the rule governing Overseas Military Personnel Charters (OMPC) has become obsolete, at least with respect to domestic air transportation. The CAB was considering whether to eliminate the tariff requirement for all OMPC's and replace it with consumer protection requirements similar to those in its Public Charter rule in Part 380. This proposal is still being considered by DOT.

Abstract: This rule would amend regulations to allow cargo tariffs which are within the zones established under 14 CFR 399.41 to be filed on 30 days' notice. There are two alternatives: either maintain the status quo (60 days' notice) or change cargo tariff filing regulations to 30 days' notice to be consistent with passenger tariff filing requirements. Abstract: The Department must now routinely decide issues of name similarity whenever an airline wishes to use a different name for its operations or a new applicant wishes to use a name for its proposed operations. The issue arises even where there is no evidence that use of a certain name will cause or has caused confusion with an existing name. The current rule is duplicative of other statutes. The issue can be decided privately without routine, active government intervention, or can be handled on a case-by-case basis. The proposed rule would 1) delete specific criteria for decisions on name cases, 2) emphasize ad hoc enforcement, and 3) change the rule to make it a form of registration. Removal of routine intervention would reduce delay in applications for name changes. It would not result in less protection for travelers when there is a real need for action.

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 27

Legal Deadline: Judicial, July 5, 1983. Statutory deadline for final rule on July 5, 1983. Court decision in Federal District Court for Maine required DOT to expedite rulemaking, but did not set a special deadline.

Abstract: The Department's rule concerning mass transit service for handicapped persons is currently an interim final rule published July 20, 1981 (46 FR 37488). This rule was issued after a court decision said that section 504 did not authorize the Department's previous mass transit requirements. In 1983, Congress enacted section 317(c) of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982, which requires the Department to publish a new rule. The Department published an NPRM for this new rule on September 6, 1983 (48 FR 40684). The Department has reviewed the comments and will publish a final rule based on this NPRM.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 98-575

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 400 to 415

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The rulemaking addresses the general organization and procedures of the Office of Commercial Space Transportation and the review procedures and information requirements pertaining to launch license applications. The proposed regulations will identify the general factors the government will consider, in the absence of published technical standards, in the course of determining whether to grant a launch license request. The process identified in the proposed regulations will set out in greater detail the two-part process described in the Department's Notice of Policy published in the Federal Register on February 25, 1985. That process consists of a Mission Review, focusing on national security and foreign policy issues, and a launch Safety Review, focusing on public safety issues. The proposed regulations will reflect the Department's current thinking on the conduct of these reviews in light of comments received on the Notice of Policy. These regulations are significant because they involve issues of substantial interest to the public and important DOT policies.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1371

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 399

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action will enable the Department to establish criteria upon which carriers will be selected to serve those markets where the number of U.S. flag carriers is restricted under current bilateral arrangements. The proposal will also examine whether certificate authority should be awarded for a limited duration or on a permanent basis. This rulemaking is significant because it could potentially establish new policy and legal precedent in the selection of carriers for limited designation markets and the duration of the authority which these carriers are awarded.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 5 USC 552 Freedom of Information Act

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 7

Abstract: This involves a revision of DOT's Freedom of Information Act regulations. Specific areas to be addressed include fees to be charged for search and reproduction costs and the establishment of more precise criteria to enable the Department to determine when a waiver of fees is in the public interest. It would also address records relating to those functions of the Civil Aeronautics Board that were transferred to the Department. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest. It is needed because the Freedom of Information Regulations need periodic revision to keep current with changes in case law, policy, and implementation costs.

Abstract: The CAB proposed new charter rules for direct and indirect air carriers. The proposed rules retain the financial protections of existing rules for direct air carriers while eliminating rules restricting the types of groups (such as "affinity" or "single-entity") to whom charters may be sold. The proposal would also retain a security instrument and depository system for indirect air carriers, along with contract rules for public protection. The proposal also highlights depository bank and travel agent responsibilities in handling passenger funds. The proposal replaces one made earlier. DOT is considering what action should be taken.

Abstract: In 1981, the Department proposed a consolidation and expansion of its existing Title VI regulation (49 CFR Part 21). Abstract: As part of the NPRM that proposed its minority business program rule, (49 CFR Part 23), the Department proposed rules concerning minority business involvement in direct DOT procurement. However, because of the program established by Public Law 95-507, these proposed rules became unnecessary, and were never finalized. That program provides for subcontracting plans and goals in certain direct Federal contracts as well as for disadvantaged business set-asides under the Small Business Administration 8(a) program. Abstract: This proposed rule would end the current practice of prescribing fixed rates for the transportation of mail by air, and in its place establish zones for each category of mail. Abstract: This rule will prohibit discrimination against air travelers on the basis of age and implement the Age Discrimination Act of 1975. A final rule was adopted by the CAB on April 10, 1980, and was forwarded to the Secretary of HHS for approval, as required by the Age Discrimination Act.

VOL 51 ISS 76 AP 21 1986 UMI

The rule was approved by HHS on July 13, 1984, with changes. However, these changes have not been incorporated. DOT is considering combining this rulemaking with a broader DOT age discrimination rule on which work is now under way.

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1305

Abstract: This rule will set out Department policies for regulation of the rates, routes, and services of airlines that have interstate authority. The CAB concluded that under section 105 of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958 it, not the States, was responsible for economic regulation (or deregulation, as the case may be) of all the routes, rates, or services of any airline holding either (i) a certificate of public convenience and necessity to provide interstate air transportation, or (ii) an exemption under section 416 of the Act from the requirement for such a certificate.

Abstract: This rule would set the minimum per-person aircraft accident liability insurance limits for U.S. and Canadian on-demand air taxi operators at $150,000, instead of at $300,000 as it is for other air carriers. The NPRM further includes alternative proposals to set the per-person limit at $75,000 or $100,000 or to eliminate all minimum amounts, requiring a public notice instead. Other rules for insurance coverage for these carriers would be as in 14 CFR Part 205, including the prohibition on safety-related exclusions. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1324; 49 USC 1372; 49 USC 1508

Abstract: The CAB proposed to simplify and clarify its rules governing the navigation of foreign aircraft that are not engaged in foreign air transportation. The proposed rule would delete outdated provisions and conform the language of the rule to FAA regulations. In addition, the rule would expand the definition of foreign and civil aircraft to include U.S. registered aircraft owned by non U.S. citizens and would revise the application procedures for foreign aircraft permits to expedite their processing. The Department is now considering what action to take.

Abstract: In the past, the CAB had held that a foreign air carrier's permit or exemption authority continues after the underlying bilateral Service Agreement expired, by virtue of section 558(c) of the Administrative Procedure Act. This rule would reverse that policy in order to ensure equal competitive opportunities for U.S. carriers. This rulemaking is significant because it involves substantial public interest. Abstract: The CAB proposed to amend its rules requiring notice of contract terms for domestic travel to require that actual notice be given passengers of terms absolving carriers from any responsibility to transport a passenger to the destination named on the ticket, or to reimburse the passenger for expenses in reaching the airport noted on the ticket when a flight is diverted to another airport in the same metropolitan area. Alternatively, the Board proposed to declare it to be an unfair and deceptive practice to divert a passenger without arranging and paying for alternate transportation to the destination airport named on the passenger's ticket. The Board considered a final rule but did not decide what action to take. DOT is now considering what action to take.

Abstract: The Compact of Free Association between the U.S. and the governments of certain territories in the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands has recently been adopted by the U.S. Congress, and will enter into effect later this year. The Compact of Free Association and related Article IX of the Federal Programs and Services Agreement would make provision for payment of subsidy, if necessary, to maintain essential air transportation to the Federated States of Micronesia and the Marshall Islands when they acquire their new status. The Compact and Agreement also permit the Department under certain conditions to pay subsidy to Freely Associated States air carriers and to authorize these carriers to carry local air traffic between Guam, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, and Honolulu, Hawaii. This rule would establish the requirements and procedures for implementing these provisions.

Abstract: The American Association of Airport Executives, the Airport Operators Council International and the Air Transport Association of America petitioned the CAB to simplify its countersign requirements. Presently, airlines are required to display four different consumer protection notices on their ticket counters. The petitioners alleged that the current notices are hard to read and, therefore, do not provide much notice to passengers. They proposed replacing the four notices with one simplified countersign. The CAB adopted an NPRM that proposed a number of alternatives, such as a long and/or short notice, where the notices would be required to be posted and whether a smoking notice should be included. DOT is now considering what action to take in response to the notice and comments filed.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1302; 49 USC 1324; 49 USC 1981

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 399

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The CAB proposed adding a policy statement that it would regard it as an unfair and deceptive practice and an unfair method of competition if two or more carriers share a single carrier designator code without giving reasonable notice to consumers of the identity of carriers actually providing service under the shared code and the nature of the relationship between carriers involved. The Board considered a final rule but took no final action. DOT issued a final policy statement on September 23, 1985. The Department also noted that it would continue to study the competitive ramifications of code sharing while the policy addressed the consumer deception question. This rulemaking is significant because consumers may be at a disadvantage without full disclosure of the identity of carriers providing services for all parts of the trip.

The emergency regulation was published in the Federal Register on November 3, 1980 (45 FR 72637). The NPRM for a long term solution to the slot allocation problem was issued on October 27, 1980 (45 FR 71236). A public hearing was held on February 13, 1981, and the comment period was extended until February 26, 1981 (46 FR 932, January 5, 1981). On June 1, 1984, the FAA issued NPRM 84-6, dealing with slot transfers among carriers, and NPRM 84-7 proposing a slot allocation method for use if a scheduling committee should fail to allocate slots. These NPRMs are discussed in the FAA portion of the agenda. The withdrawal of this NPRM might be accomplished in conjunction with final action on NPRMs 84-6 and 84-7.

Abstract: Various Coast Guard regulations specify the intervals for drydocking and tailshaft examinations on inspected vessels. The Coast Guard is considering changing these intervals. The Coast Guard will propose to extend the interval between drydockings, if this can be accomplished without diminishing overall vessel safety, because extension of the interval can result in significant savings to vessel operators. The ANPRM sought information from industry on developing technology. This regulation is significant because it involves important departmental safety policy.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Would redefine and establish qualifying criteria for certifying individuals engaged in the carriage and transfer of the various categories of dangerous cargoes in bulk. This is considered significant because of passage of the Port and Tanker Safety Act of 1978 and the fact that the International Convention on the Standards for Training, Certification and Watchkeeping for Seafarers of 1978 entered into force on April 28, 1984. This rulemaking is necessary because most pollution incidents are the result of personnel error; consequently, the minimum qualifications of persons involved in handling polluting substances should be specified.

Abstract: This rulemaking proposes requirements concerning the carriage of hybrid Personal Flotation Devices (PFD's) on recreational boats and on outer continental shelf facilities. Hybrid PFD's have reduced inherent buoyancy and are less bulky, making them more comfortable to wear. This increased comfort should result in increased wear rates and lead to a corresponding reduction in the number of drownings in boating accidents.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 67

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These regulations specify the medical standards which must be met before a medical certificate is issued to an airman. For example, a medical certificate is required before a person can obtain a pilot license. During a recent rulemaking involving these regulations, a considerable number of commenters expressed the belief that the current standards should and could be revised to state, in generally applicable objective terms, all those circumstances in which the FAA will issue medical certificates. In the past, some certificates have been issued on a case-by-case basis, with appropriate limitations, under exemption and waiver provisions where strict compliance with the existing standards was not essential in the interest of safety. A comprehensive review of these regulations is necessary to determine if the commenters' arguments are correct. If they are and the requested regulatory changes are possible, it could greatly reduce burdens, both on the FAA and airmen, associated with the processing of medical certificates.

1687. + PARTS MANUFACTURER APPROVALS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1354(a) Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 313(a); 49 USC 1421 Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 601; 49 USC 1423 Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 603

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 21; 14 CFR 45

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Since its inception, the PMA program has been controversial, and that controversy was underscored by several attempts by FAA to change the regulations. Public comment to previous NPRM's suggested FAA disparity in applying PMA rules and confusion among aviation industry members and other Federal agencies concerning both the PMA process as it existed and FAA's proposed changes. The agency withdrew its proposals and assembled a team to study all aspects of the controversy and suggest alternatives for future rulemaking. The report titled "Parts Manufacturer Approval Program Evaluation, Phase I Report" proposes (1) standardizing PMA procedures with or without rulemaking, (2) formalizing the data comparison approval method, (3) pursuing property right legislation for certain data, (4) deregulating aircraft replacement parts, or (5) delegating certain approval aspects back to industry. Regulatory Flexibility Act and Executive Order 12291 analyses are being done as part of Phase II of the study.

Abstract: Would revise existing regulation to require all large passenger-carrying aircraft be equipped with a device that will display wind shear information to the pilots. This action is considered a significant project because it will generate substantial public interest and will be controversial. As a result of several accidents involving wind shear, it is necessary to identify equipment that will enable pilots to identify low level wind shear conditions.

Abstract: Would revise noise certification standards for propeller-driven small airplanes to substitute the use of actual takeoff tests for the level flyover tests currently specified. This proposal would revise test procedures applicable to noise certification tests conducted on or after January 1, 1987. It would also revise the noise level limit numbers to approximate the equivalent of the sound levels measured and corrected in accordance with the current standard. These proposals result from industry requests for certification to be more directly based upon typical inservice noise measurements and from studies conducted in several nations over a three year period under the auspices of the International Civil Aviation Organization. In addition, the FAA proposes to exempt antique airplanes and changes involving the addition of floats or skis from the acoustical change measurement and documentation requirements of Part 21. This regulation is significant because of substantial public interest.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 36; 14 CFR 91

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Would revise both noise certification standards and operating noise rules to ensure that aircraft certificated within certain broad noise groups or "stages" remain within those stages. Those proposals would apply to transport category large aircraft and to turbojet powered aircraft regardless of category. The proposed rule would prohibit modification of both individual airplanes and whole airplane types where those modifications would result in the growth of noise beyond the limits of the airplane's current stage. While the proposal would not restrict airplane changes that result in lower noise, it would in some cases prohibit re-modification of those aircraft to return to their original noise levels. The FAA believes that these rules are necessary to correct a defect in the current regulations and to protect airports, aircraft operators and the public from the effects of that defect. This rulemaking is significant because of intense public interest.

CFR CHECKLIST

This checklist, prepared by the Office of the Federal Register, is published weekly. It is arranged in the order of CFR titles, prices, and revision dates.

An asterisk (*) precedes each entry that has been issued since last week and which is now available for sale at the Government Printing Office.

New units issued during the week are announced on the back cover of the daily Federal Register as they become available.

A checklist of current CFR volumes comprising a complete CFR set, also appears in the latest issue of the LSA (List of CFR Sections Affected), which is revised monthly.

The annual rate for subscription to all revised volumes is $595.00 domestic, $148.75 additional for foreign mailing.

Order from Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Charge orders (VISA, MasterCard, or GPO Deposit Account) may be telephoned to the GPO order desk at (202) 783-3238 from 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. eastern time, Monday—Friday (except holidays).

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 21

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice proposes to amend the Federal Aviation Regulations to permit certain aircraft product changes to be accomplished under amended type certification or supplemental type certification procedure in lieu of applying for a new type certificate. The granting of several exemptions emphasized the need for a review of established criteria mandating an application for a new type certificate. The availability of advanced, high performance, light-weight engines and superior replacement systems requires this rule change for the upgrading of older seasoned designs to increase safety, utility, performance, and reliability, and reduce operational cost. The rule remains unchanged for aircraft product modifications which are so extensive that a substantially complete investigation of compliance is required.

Abstract: The FAA proposes to update and clarify the certification and operations specifications requirements for persons who operate aircraft for compensation or hire by (1) codifying the Special Federal Aviation Regulation pertaining to the certification requirements and (2) consolidating into one part the certification and operations specifications requirements for persons who operate under Part 121 or Part 135. The proposal responds to the termination of the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) and to changes in the air transportation industry since the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978. The proposal would provide a guide enabling persons who operate aircraft for compensation or hire to determine the certification and operations requirements with which they must comply.

Abstract: The FAA proposes to require: (1) that 12-inch high nationality and registration marks (N-numbers) be displayed on aircraft that penetrate an Air Defense Identification Zone (ADIZ) or a Defense Early Warning Identification Zone (DEWIZ); (2) that a civil aircraft identification (ID) plate be displayed in a visible area on the exterior of an aircraft near the right rear-most entrance; and (3) that a copy of the FAA Form 337 for the installation of a temporary extended range fuel system be obtained and kept in the aircraft by the owner or operator until the system is removed. The U.S. Customs Service has requested the FAA to consider amending these regulations to assist in identifying aircraft suspected of being involved in drug trafficking.

DOT—FAA — Proposed Rule Stage

Abstract: This is a recodification of 14 CFR Parts 47 and 49 in order to modernize these parts, making them compatible with modern business practices, in keeping with FAA policy.

The potential costs have not yet been assessed, but are considered to be negligible as the impact will be procedural and not substantive.

The potential benefits are the clarification of regulatory language and facilitation of procedures for registration of aircraft and recordation of conveyances affecting ownership of or interest in US civil aircraft.

Additional Information: This project was initiated on June 25, 1975, in response to a GAO evaluation of the FAA's Airport Certification Program and the result it has on improving the safety of Airports. Recent delays have occurred due to industry concerns over aviation fueling responsibilities. FAA has reviewed proposals presented by a group of aviation organizations and changes have been made to the NPRM. The NPRM was published in the Federal Register on October 23, 1985. The comment period closed on January 21, 1986.

Additional Information: Docket No. 22471. The rule was originally promulgated to reduce air traffic congestion and delay. With the advent of improved programs, procedures, and air traffic flow management, the rule is felt to be unnecessary. On March 6, 1984, the FAA issued an interim final rule that amended the High Density Rule (49 FR 8237; March 6, 1984). The agency will reexamine within the next 6-9 months (from the 3/1/84 issuance date) the capability of the air traffic control system to handle the unusual demands that a less constrained system may create, such as significant airborne holding and multiple requests by operators for release from gates. This will be examined in connection with airport capacity and the experience levels of air traffic control personnel.

Abstract: The high density rule, 14 CFR Subpart K, limits the number of Air Carrier and Commuter operations at the four high density airports. On December 16, 1985, DOT issued new Subpart S to Part 93 providing that operating slots at high density airports may be bought and sold, effective April 1, 1986. Subparts provides that each operator will be allocated those slots held by the operator on December 16, 1985. Because there will be few slots available for new entrants, this proposal would ensure that five percent of the total slots at each airport are available for reallocation by lottery. The lottery would include a preference for new entrant carriers.

National Environmental Policy Act, Title I; EO 11514

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 21; 14 CFR 36

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Would revise noise certification standards for aircraft to add provisions applicable to helicopters. These would apply to civil helicopters in the normal, transport, and restricted categories, and would provide noise level limits and test procedures for the issuance of new and amended type certificates. It would also prohibit changes in type design of helicopters that might increase their noise levels beyond certain limits. Although this notice contains several provisions similar to those in an earlier notice, which was withdrawn in 1981, it differs from that notice in several important aspects. One is the absence of any limit on manufacture of older non-conforming types; another is the increased commonality between these proposed standards and those adopted by the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO).

Additional Information: Part 36 of the Federal Aviation Regulations (14 CFR Part 36) contains noise standards for aircraft type and airworthiness certification. As the part is currently organized, Subparts B and C and Appendices A, B, and C apply to transport category large airplane and subsonic turbojet powered airplanes regardless of category. Appendix F contains the provisions applicable to propeller driven light airplanes. This notice proposes to prescribe noise levels and test procedures for civil helicopters certificated in the normal, transport, and restricted categories. These proposals include rules governing the issuance of new and amended type certificates for helicopters for which application is made on and after the publication date of this notice. The proposed rule would prohibit certain growth or other design changes if those changes might result in noise levels beyond prescribed limits. The proposed rule also provides the test conditions and procedures for conducting helicopter noise tests to demonstrate compliance with the prescribed noise levels.

Abstract: This proposed rule is designed to alleviate increased delays throughout the air traffic system. If implemented, the FAA would alter current airline scheduling through a lottery process to more evenly space arrivals and departures throughout the day. Abstract: This review deals with the air traffic and general operating rules in Part 91 - the most fundamental aviation regulations. This action would reorganize and rearrange the rules without substantive change, to make them easier to use and understand. (Phase I). A later action will review and revise them to eliminate unnecessary burdens in keeping with E.O. 12291. (Phase II). AOPA withdrew its petition on November 20, 1980, so the FAA could proceed with this two-step review. ANPRM 79-2 published the original AOPA petition for comment on January 22, 1979 (44 FR 4571). NPRM 79-2A proposing reorganization of Part 91 was published on September 10, 1981 (46 FR 45256). NPRM 79-2B extended the comment period to April 9, 1982 (December 10, 1981; 46 FR 60461). Comments received on NPRM 79-2A will form a basis for proceeding with Phase II.

Abstract: This notice set forth a procedure to be used if the scheduling committees are unable to allocate newly available slots at the high density airports. The proposal is, in part, a response to the recommendations made by a number of air carriers and commuters in response to the FAA's High Density Rulemaking. Those commenters stated that they are concerned that the scheduling committees may deadlock. A separate NPRM on the transfer of slots has also been issued. This regulation is significant because it involves important departmental policy.

This proposal responds to the conclusions of an FAA Crashworthiness Study Report, a Petition for Rulemaking from the General Aviation Manufacturers Association (GAMA), and Safety Recommendations from the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB). This proposal will enhance the crashworthiness of small airplanes manufactured one year after the effective date of the proposed amendment. regarding the Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR) contained in Part 390 of 49 CFR. This rulemaking is being undertaken to implement section 206 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act (MCSA) of 1984 which mandated the reissuance of the FMCSR. Part 390 deals with motor carrier definitions and general provisions regarding motor carrier operations. This entry appeared in the last agenda (April 1985) entitled "Retail Fertilizer Distribution Exemption." Pursuant to section 206 of the MCSA, the ANPRM on retail fertilizer distribution exemption (2/10/82, 47 FR 5273) was withdrawn on 1/23/85 (50 FR 2998). This rulemaking action will incorporate the comments made to the 2/10/82 ANPRM since the provisions relating to exemptions for retail fertilizer equipment are contained in Part 390.

Abstract: An analysis of comments to the March 1, 1985 NPRM indicates insufficient rationale to establish semitrailer lengths in 11 States. Therefore, a supplemental request for information was made of FHWA field offices and the trucking industry (through the 60 NR committee) to try to reach a supportable length in the remaining States. That supplemental information was due September 1, 1985. There still remains insufficient rationale for establishing semitrailer lengths in 5 States. After carefully considering a number of options, it has been determined to issue a supplemental NPRM.

Abstract: The FHWA is seeking public comment concerning the development of Federal commercial motor vehicle inspection standards which would be applicable to motor carriers engaged in interstate or foreign commerce. This action is required by section 210 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984. The proposed revisions will require motor carriers to comply with Federal inspection standards, a State inspection program or an authorized self-inspection program. The FHWA also proposes to add two definitions contained in section 204 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 3102; PL 98-554, Sec 206

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 390 to 399

Legal Deadline: Statutory, April 30, 1986

Abstract: Section 206 of the Motor Carrier Act of 1984 (Pub. L 98-554) (the Act) directs the Secretary of Transportation to issue regulations pertaining to commercial motor vehicle safety. The Department has issued regulations, the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR), on this subject under earlier authority (49 U.S.C. 3102). The purpose of this advance notice of proposed rulemaking (ANPRM) is to identify and solicit comment on specific changes which should be made to the FMCSR prior to reissuance in order to effectuate the purposes of the Act. The purposes of the Act are to ensure that: commercial motor vehicles are safely maintained, equipped, loaded and operated; the responsibilities of drivers do not impair their ability to drive safely; the physical condition of drivers is adequate to enable them to drive safely; and the operation of the vehicles does not have deleterious effects on drivers. This rulemaking will be a comprehensive effort, and thus the Agency will incorporate certain other regulatory actions which have been proposed but have not yet been completed. There is no alternative to the overall reissuance of the FMCSR. However, (cont)

Similarly, potential costs and benefits cannot now be identified, but rather must await the development of a notice of proposed rulemaking. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest. Due to the amount of subject matter which this rulemaking action addresses, each Part (390-399) will be addressed in separate rulemakings. Comments received in response to this action will be considered as appropriate regarding the separate rulemaking actions. Abstract: Section 206 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984 (Act) directs the DOT to reissue regulations pertaining to commercial motor vehicle safety. On November 23, 1984, the FHWA published a final rule at 49 FR 46145 regarding Hours of Service in order to comply with an opinion of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. A docket was opened (MC-99-1) in order to request comments for further consideration of revisions to the requirement of the driver's record of duty status. Pursuant to section 206 of the Act, an ANPRM was issued (1/23/85; 50 FR 2998) and again requested comments regarding the requirement for recorded hours of service. This rulemaking action will incorporate all comments received to the above mentioned published rulemaking actions. This document will consider the possible elimination of certain items required on the driver's record of duty status and extending the 12-hour limitation in the 100 mile radius exemption to 15 hours or permitting a 50 mile radius rule as an option with the 15 hour rule. Abstract: By this action, the FHWA is taking steps to implement the 12-foot wide lane provisions contained in the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 (STAA) as amended by the Tandem Truck Safety Act of 1984 (TTSA). An ANPRM published 4/1/85 at 50 FR 12825 identified for re-examination specific routes on the National Network containing sections with lanes less than 12 feet wide in those States which do not otherwise permit 102-inch wide vehicles on the National Network, pursuant to State law. These States are Alabama, Florida, Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Puerto Rico, South Carolina, Tennessee, and Virginia. After a review, FHWA intends to propose the deletion of highways with lane widths less than 12 feet wide if such designation is found to be inconsistent with highway safety. The FHWA is soliciting information, data and comments concerning these routes that may assist in the review.

Abstract: Section 215 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984 requires the FHWA, in cooperation with the Interstate Commerce Commission, to establish a procedure to determine the safety fitness of owners and operators of commercial motor vehicles including persons seeking new or additional operating authority as motor carriers. Comments are being requested regarding the proposed changes in the current safety rating procedures and a new proposed "provisional safety rating" for those carriers who have not previously been assigned a safety rating or who intend to be a new entrant into the motor carrier industry. It has been determined that this rulemaking action is a significant regulation under the regulatory policies and procedures of the Department of Transportation because of the total estimated indirect benefits that may result.

Abstract: The Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) is considering proposing to revise Part 390 of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR) to implement Section 206 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984. This proposal would establish the duties of employers and drivers regarding employee safety and health. A motor carrier would be responsible for furnishing to each driver a place of employment that is free from recognized hazards that cause or are likely to cause death or injury to drivers. A driver would be responsible for cooperating with a motor carrier's safety program. It is anticipated that this general duty rule will cover those aspects of the driver environment (such as hot surfaces, lack of insulation, and broken equipment in or on the vehicle) that are not covered by present standards under the FMCSR.

Abstract: This regulation proposes to consolidate and amend existing air quality requirements for transportation projects into a single amended air quality regulation. The amended regulation is intended to streamline and simplify (1) the process of determining which highway projects are exempt from the Federal assistance limitations of section 176(a) of the Clean Air Act (CAA), and (2) the conformity and priority procedures contained in 23 CFR 770. The amendments are also intended to provide more authority and flexibility to State and local agencies and to meet the objectives of the CAA in the most cost-effective and expeditious manner. The amendments are significant because they involve important departmental policy.

Abstract: This rulemaking action will be issued in order to implement section 206 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984. Section 206 requires the reissuance by the FHWA of regulations pertaining to commercial motor carrier safety. Options available to the FHWA regarding the requirement for a written examination for commercial vehicle drivers include (1) rescission of the requirement; (2) retaining the requirement and updating the questions; and, (3) revising the requirement to a pass/fail situation.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 2314; 49 USC 3102; Section 414 of STAA of 1982

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 393

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 414 of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 (Pub. L. 97-424) states that Congress declares the visibility on wet roadways in the Interstate System should be improved by reducing splash and spray from truck tractors, semitrailers and trailers. Congress instructed the Secretary to establish, by regulation, minimum standards with respect to the performance and installation of splash and spray suppression devices on truck tractors, semitrailers and trailers. Further, Congress mandated that all vehicles in use 5 years from date of enactment be equipped with such devices. The revisions to 49 CFR 393 will implement this mandate. This rulemaking is considered significant because of its economic impact on the motor carrier industry.

Abstract: The FHWA is proposing to provide a statement of FHWA interpretation and policy addressing the size and weight provisions contained in the Tandem Truck Safety Act of 1984 (TTSA) which amended the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 (STAA). This action addresses (1) conditions under which segments of the National System of Interstate and Defense Highways may be deleted from the National Truck Network, (2) conditions affecting the designation of new routes on the Federal-Aid Primary System as part of the National Truck Network, and (3) new provisions for 102-inch wide 28 1/2-foot semi-trailers. The issue relative to the qualifications of highways previously designated with lane widths less than 12 feet is the subject of a separate rulemaking action. Abstract: The FHWA is proposing revisions to certain provisions established by the final rule on truck size and weight published at 49 CFR 23302 on June 5, 1984. This action proposes: (1) a definition for an automobile-transporter; (2) a minimum 75-foot overall length for a stinger-steered automobile-transporter; (3) the allowance of triple saddlemount combinations with a minimum length of 65 feet; and, (4) no overall length limitations for conventional tractor-semitrailer automobile transporters when the semitrailer is 48 feet in length. The purpose of this rulemaking action is to clarify and further define certain issues contained in the June 5, 1984, final rule.

Abstract: This revision to an existing regulation would reflect policy changes in management of the highway planning and research program, e.g., allowing separate projects for components of the program (urbanized area planning, statewide planning, research and development), and applying matching rates to time periods rather than a fiscal year fund, etc. NPRM was published January 11, 1979 (44 FR 2400). As a result of comments received to the Docket, as well as internal coordination, FHWA is considering combining this regulation with 23 CFR Part 450, Subpart C, Metropolitan Planning Funds, since both deal with program administration. A revised NPRM combining parts 420 and 450 and incorporating requirements mandated by the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 was published on 3/28/85 (50 FR 12328).

CFR Citation: 23 CFR 480

Abstract: Federal Highway Administration regulations in 23 CFR Part 480 prescribe the circumstances under which states must repay the Federal Government for the Federal contribution to the purchase of property for Interstate highway projects that are later withdrawn. Congress, in Public Law 96-106, amended 23 U.S.C. 103(e) to change the circumstances under which repayment must be made. This revision to an existing regulation would incorporate the legislative changes in 23 CFR Part 480, and narrows the scope of the regulation by eliminating situations other than Interstate withdrawals from its coverage.

Additional Information: Additional information: An interim policy statement was published 6/6/83 (48 FR 25181) to implement acceleration methods for selected projects within existing regulations. Initially, FHWA had considered issuing a new regulation as a vehicle for accelerating Federal-aid projects pursuant to Section 129 of the STAA of 1982. However, it has been determined that the objectives of Section 129 can be best implemented by revisions to existing regulations. Therefore, separate regulations will not be issued regarding the acceleration program. This approach received the concurrence of Deputy Administrator Lamm on April 11, 1984. This regulation will be withdrawn.

Abstract: The FHWA is amending its regulation on recordkeeping and reporting requirements for on-the-job training on Federal-aid construction contracts. The revised regulation would no longer require contractors to submit the Federal-Aid Highway Construction Contractor's Semi-Annual Training Report (OMB No. 2125-0021) and would no longer require State Highway Agencies to complete and submit the Federal-Aid Highway Construction Semi-Annual Training Report (OMB No. 2125-0021). In addition, the specific recordkeeping requirement and documentation of contractor performance under the training special provision would be eliminated. This list includes citations to publications containing standards, specifications, policies, guides, and references which are approved for application in the geometric and structural design of federally funded highways. The revisions amend the regulations by (1) updating citations to reflect current publication dates and titles; (2) removing obsolete references; (3) relocating references to the appropriate section; (4) correcting references to incorporate prior rulemaking actions; and (5) redesignating and adding certain publications that contain guidance and informational material to a new section. Legal Authority: 49 USC 3102

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The FHWA is considering amending the noise emission standards to add a new minimum distance of 31 feet from which to measure highway noise. FHWA is also considering eliminating the correction factor which allowed a variance for noise tests taken at hard sites, e.g., asphalt, compared to those taken at soft sites, e.g. grassy areas.

DOT—FHWA

Final Rule Stage

Legal Authority: 49 USC 3102; 49 USC App 2505

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 391

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking action will amend the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR) by revising the prohibitive language of the nonalcoholic drug medical standard for interstate or foreign commerce drivers. The revisions would prohibit the use of certain nonalcoholic drugs whereas the current rule prohibits the driver from having a current clinical diagnosis of drug dependence. The change is being proposed because the present language could allow known drug users to continue to drive commercial motor vehicles in spite of the knowledge of their drug use.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 3102; PL 98-554, Sec 206

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 394

Legal Deadline: Statutory, April 30, 1986

Abstract: The revision deals primarily with revising the truck and bus accident report forms. Being considered are (1) the consolidation of both forms into one, (2) reducing the number of copies to be filed and (3) raising the reporting threshold from the present $2,000 to a higher figure. The NPRM issued on 1/16/84 (49 FR 1912) has been withdrawn pursuant to section 206 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984. Section 206 requires the reissuance of regulations concerning commercial motor vehicle safety by April 30, 1986. The comments received in response to the NPRM will be incorporated into this rulemaking action.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 23 USC 131; 23 USC 148; 23 USC 315

Abstract: This amendment would have provided a definition of "effective control" of outdoor advertising as required by 23 U.S.C. 131. It would also have set further requirements for signs exempt from control under the statute and established the basic framework for State development of police power regulations and procedures. This action is being terminated because after a further review, it has been determined that no further regulatory action is necessary. Abstract: The FHWA issued an ANPRM to solicit comments on the adequacy of the current policy on skid accident reduction. Comments were also requested on several specific issues raised concerning the current policy. Twenty-nine formal replies were received including twenty-two from State highway agencies. The FHWA has completed field reviews of the effectiveness of skid accident reduction programs in selected States. Based on comments received to the public docket and a further review of current programs, it has been determined that new regulations are unnecessary. Therefore, the ANPRM issued on 5/25/84 (49 FR 22105) has been withdrawn. (01/13/86; 51 FR 1389).

Abstract: The existing regulation has been revised to incorporate statutory changes mandated by the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 (STAA) and to make other revisions to update references to other regulations or statutes and to reflect administrative changes. The revisions provide the basic criteria for determining whether mass transit and special use highway projects are eligible for Federal-aid funding under 23 USC 137, 142, and 149. This rulemaking consolidates previous projected rulemakings under the headings Fringe and Corridor Parking and High Occupancy Lanes.

Abstract: Proposes a comprehensive review of headlighting requirements of FMVSS No. 108 which may be simplified, while being consistent with motor vehicle safety. The agency has concentrated its efforts into five principal areas. The first is the feasibility of a standard directed toward on-board original equipment headlighting performance rather than toward performance of individual aftermarket headlamps in a laboratory environment. The second is the desirability of specifications for headlamp life. The third concerns the necessity of dimensional specifications for headlamp equipment. The fourth is the issue of headlamp aim. The fifth is the elimination of obsolete photometric requirements.

1876. FEDERAL MOTOR VEHICLE SAFETY STANDARD NO. 301 - FUEL SYSTEM INTEGRITY

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: EO 12291

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.301

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This standard, which is applicable to passenger cars, light trucks, and school buses, specifies requirements for the integrity of motor vehicle fuel systems. The purpose of the standard is to reduce deaths and injuries caused by fires which result from fuel spillage or after motor vehicle crashes. This evaluation follows up and expands on a prior study on passenger cars which showed that while the regulation was effective in preventing deaths and injuries, the incidence of crash fires appeared to be increasing. This evaluation will also provide the initial assessment of the regulation as it applies to light trucks. A review has determined that this rule has minimal effects on small entities, and therefore a Regulatory Flexibility Act Review is not required. The rule will still be reviewed as a priority review item. Subsequent to completion of the study and provision for public comment, the Agency will consider whether changes should be made in the standard's requirements.

1877. + REVIEW: SIDE DOOR STRENGTH

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.214

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation provides minimum standards for side door crash resistance for passenger cars under static test conditions. NHTSA estimates that the standard saves 2,800 lives and averts 7,000 injuries a year. A recurring cost of $300 million (an additional cost of $36 per vehicle) is associated with the requirement. An initial review of this regulation, originally promulgated in 1974, was completed in 1979.

1883. + SPLASH AND SPRAY SUPPRESSION DEVICES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 2314

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 583

Legal Deadline: Statutory. Standard for new vehicles is now required to take effect one year after final rule is published.

Abstract: In accordance with the mandate of section 414 of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982, would establish minimum standards with respect to the performance of splash and spray suppression devices on truck tractors, semitrailers and trailers. Would also establish minimum standards with respect to the installation of splash and spray suppression devices on new vehicles. This regulation is significant because it is potentially controversial.

Additional Information: NHTSA's rulemaking would only affect new vehicles and equipment. However, section 414 of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act also mandates that the Department of Transportation establish minimum standards with respect to the installation of splash and spray devices for vehicles already in service. The Federal Highway Administration will conduct the rulemaking to satisfy that mandate. The Federal Highway Administration has classified its rulemaking as major. The costs of that rulemaking are expected to be much greater than NHTSA's rulemaking since (1) the population of vehicles in service is many times the annual production of new trucks, (2) a truck manufacturer will pay less per unit for each splash and spray suppression device when ordered in large quantities, and (3) the labor time to install the devices is far less for a new truck manufacturer, since it can be done at the assembly plant. In 1984, the Surface Transportation Assistance Act was amended to change the implementation date from 1/1/85, for new vehicles and 1/1/86, for vehicles in service, to one year after publication of the Final Rule for new vehicles & 3 years later for vehicles in service.

1884. + HEAVY TRAILER STABILITY

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392; 15 USC 1407

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In response to a petition for rulemaking, the agency is proposing a new regulation to add a requirement that 102-inch wide trailers be equipped with axle tracks having a minimum axle width of 77 inches. An advanced notice of proposed rulemaking seeking comments on the safety issue raised by the petition was published on May 22, 1984 (49 FR 21551). This rulemaking is significant because of the possible substantial impact on the industry and because it is a joint venture involving two operating administrations.

Abstract: Would establish a new brake standard for all trucks, buses and trailers with a Gross Vehicle Weight Rating (GVWR) over 10,000 pounds. This standard would replace Standard No. 121, Air Brake Systems, and that portion of Standard No. 105, Hydraulic Brake Systems, that applies to vehicles with a GVWR over 10,000 pounds. It would also establish new requirements for heavy trailers having other than air-actuated brakes. In developing the standard, the agency will consider compatibility with international regulations. Research programs in support of this new standard and possible future upgradings of the standard will investigate such long-term advanced braking system concepts as automatic brake adjustors, load-sensing proportioning valves, air driers, and retarders for heavy trucks, buses and trailers. This rule is considered significant because of the level of public and Congressional interest. It is necessary to prevent and reduce the severity of accidents involving heavy vehicles by providing increased accident avoidance capability.

1906. + OCCUPANT CRASH PROTECTION - TEST PROCEDURES AND OTHER ISSUES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392 National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act ETC; 15 USC 1407 National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act ETC

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.208; 49 CFR 572

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking addresses the test procedures used in compliance testing, the dummy used for such testing, and the oblique angle test requirement in the automatic occupant crash protection standard. It also addresses some related issues including the standard's applicability to convertibles, reporting requirements for manufacturers, and the exercise of "due care" by manufacturers, in complying with the standard. This rulemaking will consider whether the Hybrid III dummy or a variation may be substituted for the dummy currently specified in 49 CFR 572 at some future time with corresponding changes in, or additions to the injury criteria established by the existing Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard 208. The costs and benefits of these various proposed changes are not yet known. This regulation is significant because of its involvement with departmental policy.

1907. ● + POST-1986 PASSENGER CAR FUEL ECONOMY STANDARDS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 15 USC 2002

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 531

Legal Deadline: Statutory. Amendments reducing the fuel economy standard for a particular model year are required to be made by the beginning of a model year.

Abstract: This rule would amend the average fuel economy standard applicable to passenger automobiles manufactured in model years (MYs) 1987 and 1988, within a range between 26.0 mpg and 27.5 mpg for each model year. The agency previously granted several petitions relating to these and other model years. General Motors (GM) and Ford had petitioned for a reduction in the MY 1986 and thereafter standards, from 27.5 mpg to 26.0 mpg. (The agency has completed rulemaking with respect to their petitions for MY 1986.) The Center For Auto Safety and Environmental Policy Institute had petitioned for an increase in the MY 1987 to 1990 standards. The agency will consider the petitions regarding model years after MY 1988 at a later time.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 15 USC 2025

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 543

Legal Deadline: Statutory. Statute requires petitions for exemption to be submitted 6 months before start of production of passenger vehicle line.

Abstract: Establishes procedures to be followed by manufacturers in preparing and submitting petitions for exemptions from the vehicle theft prevention standard. Passenger motor vehicle manufacturers may petition NHTSA for these exemptions for vehicle lines whose standard equipment includes an antitheft device that is likely to be as effective as compliance with the vehicle theft prevention standard in deterring and reducing vehicle theft. Procedures are also established which the agency will follow in processing these petitions and in reaching determinations on whether they should be granted. These procedures have been issued as an interim final rule for MY 1987 and as a proposed rule for MYs 1988 and thereafter.

Abstract: Would amend Standard No. 101 to permit greater flexibility in the illumination and identification of controls and displays. The proposal would allow gauges to have a two-level lighting intensity, rather than being continuously variable over a wide range. It would distinguish between critical telltales, such as the turn signal indicators, which must be visible under all lighting conditions, and less significant telltales, such as the water temperature indicator, which would be permitted the same range of intensity as gauges. The term, "informational readout display" would be eliminated as no longer useful. To accommodate new display technologies, the proposal would permit the cancellation of messages, but would require them to be retrievable by the driver. The use of specified words to identify controls would be permitted, as an alternative to the symbols now required for many controls. This action was initiated in response to several petitions for rulemaking.

Abstract: On April 12, 1985, NHTSA issued a notice proposing modifications to certain aspects of the comfort and convenience performance requirements in Standard No. 208, Occupant Crash Protection. The agency's purpose was to clarify the intent of the requirements and to address the concerns raised in petitions for reconsideration received from seven vehicle manufacturers regarding the final rule on comfort and convenience issued on January 8, 1981. This rule sets comfort and convenience performance requirements for both manual and automatic safety belt assemblies installed in motor vehicles with a GVWR of 10,000 pounds or less. The April 12, 1985 notice also proposed to change the effective date of the comfort and convenience requirements. A final rule setting the effective date as September 1, 1986, was issued on August 23, 1985. Two petitions for reconsideration have been received.

1934. + PROCEDURES FOR TRANSITION TO NEW NATIONAL DRIVER REGISTER

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 23 USC 401 Note

CFR Citation: 23 CFR 1325

Legal Deadline: None. The notice replying to letters requesting reconsideration is not subject to a legal deadline. However, if the NDR includes an abstract request mechanism, the agency's pilot test program of the NDR will be affected; this program has a statutory deadline of 04/25/85. Congress may delay this deadline to 04/25/86.

Abstract: The National Driver Register Act of 1982 directs the agency to establish a new National Driver Register (NDR) that will assist states in electronically exchanging information about problem drivers. This rulemaking establishes the procedures for making an orderly transition from the current NDR system to the electronic system mandated by the Act. This regulation is significant because it involves important departmental policy. On December 2, 1985, a request for comments (50 FR 49409) was published in the Federal Register. The agency had received a number of letters pertaining to a statement made in the preamble to the final rule (50 FR 28191) regarding procedures for transition to the new National Driver Register (NDR). In the December 2, 1985 notice, the agency indicated that it would reconsider its decision not to include a driver license abstract request mechanism in the NDR and requested further comments from the public. Letters requesting reconsideration have been received and a reply to these letters will be issued.

Abstract: The inquiry obtained information from the public that assisted FRA in evaluating currently available devices that can determine the brake pipe pressure on the rear car of a train and transmit the pressure reading to the cab of the controlling locomotive. The proposed rule would permit use of a telemetry device to determine the application and release of the brakes on the rear car of a train during the intermediate terminal air brake test.

Abstract: The proposed regulations would unify the civil rights regulations that recipients of funds under the Urban Mass Transportation Act must meet. This rulemaking is significant because substantial public interest is anticipated. Regulations are needed to implement a new statutory provision which consolidates UMTA's authority to assure effective and uniform compliance with civil rights and equal employment opportunity requirements in a manner comparable to other agencies within the Department of Transportation.

Abstract: This regulation proposes to consolidate and amend existing air quality requirements for transportation projects into a single amended air quality regulation. The amended regulation is intended to streamline and simplify (1) the process of determining which highway projects are exempt from the Federal assistance limitations of section 176(a) of the Clean Air Act (CAA), and (2) the conformity and priority procedures contained in 23 CFR 770. The amendments are also intended to provide more authority and flexibility to State and local agencies and to meet the objectives of the CAA in the most cost-effective and expeditious manner. The amendments are significant because they involve important departmental policy.

Abstract: The proposed regulations will encourage, to the maximum extent feasible, the participation of private enterprise in plans and programs that receive Federal funding under the UMT Act. UMTA intends, through these proposed rules, to ensure an appropriate role for the private sector in local mass transportation decision-making, and to secure opportunities for carriers to provide services that are convenient for the public, and cost efficient, with minimum public subsidy.

Additional Information: On October 22, 1984 UMTA issued a notice of policy (49 FR 41310-12) designed to encourage private participation in mass transportation planning and programming to the maximum extent feasible, consistent with the directives of UMT Act subsections 3(e), 8(e), and 9(f). UMTA now finds that rulemaking is necessary to ensure enforcement capability and to overcome practices that unfairly exclude private enterprise from opportunities to provide mass transportation services. The essential principles of policy that would be effected through this rulemaking are the same as those announced in the October 22, 1984 Federal Register notice.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1602; 49 USC 1607

Abstract: This regulation would require each transit agency that receives Federal financial assistance to have a maintenance program that states maintenance goals and objectives, provides for adequate maintenance for both fixed facilities and equipment, and provides for adequate personnel to meet the goals and objectives of the program. The proposed rule would also require that each transit agency retain or assemble information necessary for UMTA to review the transit agency's actual maintenance activities and make determinations on compliance as required by statute. This rule is significant because it concerns a matter on which there is substantial controversy.

Additional Information: The Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 (1982 STAA) included maintenance provisions in both sections 3 and 9 of the UMT Act. In the new section 9 block grant program, Congress provided that all recipients must certify that they will maintain facilities and equipment. UMT Act section 9(e)(3)(B). Section 9(g)(1) authorizes UMTA to determine by review or audit whether the recipients have complied with the maintenance requirement. The 1982 STAA also amended the section 3 discretionary grant and loan program by adding a provision that requires applicants to have sufficient capability to maintain facilities and equipment obtained with Federal assistance. Abstract: To develop performance-oriented packaging standards for small packagings based on the Recommendation of the United Nations Committee of Experts on the Transport of Dangerous Goods. Also includes former non-significant rulemakings entitled "Consolidation of Specifications and Establishment of Performance Standards for Specification Bags" (Docket No. HM-153), "Specifications for and use of Specification 17 Steel Drums" (Docket No. HM-182), and "Organic Peroxide Requirements" (Project 186-72). The rulemaking is significant because a large number of specifications for packaging in the Hazardous Materials Regulations would be affected by this project. To a large extent the complexity and mass of the present Hazardous Materials Regulations are due to the detailed specification-type packaging standards contained in these regulations. To replace these with standards based on the U.N. system would both simplify the present regulations and facilitate international trade.

Abstract: DOT is considering a rule that would require submission to DOT of nonstop market data from foreign carriers providing scheduled service between their home countries and the United States. This information is needed to assess potential and actual benefits of bilateral agreements. In addition international charter data currently collected from foreign carriers may also be incorporated with service segment reporting. This information may very well replace some of the data currently collected by the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) on Forms I-92 and I-94. Although there will be some start-up costs, it is anticipated that over the long run there will be substantial savings for both the industry and the government.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1803; 49 USC 1804; 49 USC 1809

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 171

Abstract: The current regulations require reports of hazardous material incidents. The objective of this review is to determine if the current data requirements can be modified to reduce the burden on industry but still result in the collection of the information needed for the hazardous materials safety program. Although safety programs, such as the one covered by these regulations, require data in order to function properly, it is possible that the data collection can be made less burdensome.

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1324; 49 USC 1373

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 241

Abstract: The present definition of revenue and nonrevenue passengers for aviation reporting purposes is stated in terms of the exemptions for free and reduced-rate transportation in sections 403(b) of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958. These definitions have become outmoded in the process of air fare deregulation. In addition, first class and coach passengers are defined in terms of the type of fare paid with premium or standard fares being the benchmark for first class. With deregulation and the proliferation of the marketplace with new air fares, these definitions may also be outmoded. The DOT is considering several options for revising these definitions.

Abstract: OMB has mandated that the 10 percent sampling requirement contained in the Passenger Origin-Destination Survey be eliminated and that a requirement that the collection include a statistically valid sample be substituted. The NPRM has requested comments on the size of the sample and invited the public to propose alternative methods of administering the statutory data collection requirements contained in the Civil Aeronautics Board Sunset Act of 1984. The NPRM also proposed to standardize reporting between pre-deregulation carriers and post-deregulation carriers. This change has the potential for reducing the burden on the industry. This rulemaking is significant because it may substantially change the reporting requirements for the aviation industry and significantly reduce the associated paperwork burdens.

Abstract: OMB stated that the continuation of uniform, detailed financial and operating reporting of domestic air transportation appears to be contrary to airline deregulation. It has mandated that an NPRM be issued soliciting specific recommendations from the affected public. The NPRM will be broad enough in scope to accommodate a wide range of alternatives, including complete elimination of all requirements. The NPRM will specifically request comments on the need for, and frequency of, the collection in the light of the information collection requirements imposed on the airlines by other Federal agencies. Additionally, the NPRM will request specific comments from other agencies that presently use the Form 41 data. This rulemaking is significant because it may substantially change the reporting requirements for the aviation industry and significantly reduce the associated paperwork burdens.

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1672

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192

Abstract: The adequacy of existing standards with regard to safety problems concerning interior piping would be examined and new standards may be proposed. Responses to the ANPRM indicate that State and local safety regulations adequately cover gas piping in a building. Proposed change in "Service Line" definition would recognize this situation.

Abstract: This rulemaking responds to a Department of Energy request that we improve the water resistance of overpacks used in the transportation of uranium hexafluoride. The natural form of mined uranium has low radioactivity; it must be purified to produce a form suitable for certain commercial uses. The purification process produces a small amount of radioactive uranium hexafluoride and a large amount of waste uranium hexafluoride enriched in the fissionable U-235 isotope that is of low radioactivity. This rulemaking addresses the packaging for the more highly radioactive, enriched uranium hexafluoride. It does not address the low level radioactive waste uranium hexafluoride, which is transported in plain cylinders. In the recent capsize of a French vessel carrying uranium hexafluoride, there was a danger of radioactive contamination because the vessel was carrying a variety of uranium hexafluoride packages; some contained material that had been removed from spent reactor fuel and reprocessed for reuse. In the United States, this material is never reprocessed, furthermore, the enriched form of uranium hexafluoride is always carried (cont)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 46 USC 1241(b); 46 USC 1114(b)

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 382, (New)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation would require provision of rate and cost data to MARAD so it can determine fair and reasonable rates for carriage of preference cargo in bulk vessels at the request of concerned Federal agencies. MARAD would calculate guideline fair and reasonable rates using a methodology which would average operating costs to determine allowable costs for each vessel. It would establish requirements for the submission of data on which the methodology would be based. This rulemaking is significant because it concerns a matter on which there is substantial public interest. It would clarify the meaning of a statutory term.

2082. MERCHANT MARINE TRAINING; REGULATIONS AND MINIMUM STANDARDS FOR STATE, TERRITORIAL OR REGIONAL MARITIME ACADEMIES AND COLLEGES

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 46 USC 1114(b); PL 97-31

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 310

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Maritime Administration is considering amending its merchant marine training regulations to rescind a 10 percent reduction in the number of student incentive payments offered to incoming students at the state maritime academies/colleges. The reduction which is being rescinded was published in the Federal Register on April 4, 1984, as one of a number of amendments to 46 CFR Part 310 (49 FR 13384). This action was considered necessary because the 1985 and 1986 funding levels for Maritime Training, contained in appropriation legislation, exceeded the funding level that had been reflected in the April 1984 MARAD rulemaking action.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 46 USC 1241(b); 46 USC 1114(b)

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 382, (New)

Abstract: Regulation would require provision of rate and cost data to MARAD so it can determine fair and reasonable rates for carriage of preference cargo at the request of concerned Federal agencies. This rulemaking is significant because it concerns a matter on which there is substantial public interest. It is needed to clarify the meaning of a statutory term.

Abstract: The Maritime Administration (MARAD) proposes to amend its regulations with respect to procedures now required under liner operating-differential subsidy agreements (ODSA) for Approval of "Non-Subsidized Voyages." 2035. + NOTICE OF INTENT TO REDESIGNATE ESSENTIAL TRADE ROUTES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 46 USC 1121

CFR Citation: Not applicable

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Maritime Administration intends to redesignate U.S., foreign trade routes determined to be essential for the promotion, development, expansion and maintenance of the foreign commerce of the United States, under authority in the Merchant Marine Act, 1936. There have been no substantial changes in essential trade route designations since the Act's enactment, other than inclusion of the U.S. Great Lakes. This action recognizes that in recent years major changes in shipping technology and U.S. trade patterns have emerged. It would consolidate the present 29 essential trade routes and essential trade areas into fewer essential trade areas.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 46 USC 1173; 46 USC 1114(b)

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 282, (New)

Abstract: The procedure that MARAD now follows in determining ODS for liner vessels is set forth in a manual, rather than in a regulation. Under the existing procedure, final subsidy payments are delayed on the average of three years. The proposed rule prescribes a system of fixed and final ODS rates that would permit administration of the ODS program on a more current basis. A change in procedures for determining foreign competition more accurately could result in annual ODS savings of up to $4 million.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 46 USC 1171 to 1176; 46 USC 1178 to 1181

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 252

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Under the current system for determining subsidy for bulk vessels as set forth in 46 CFR 252, final payments are delayed an average of three years. The current system precludes the operators from timely receipt of monies due them, thereby hindering the companies' cash management capability and the government's ability to forecast accurate budget obligations. The amended rule would prescribe new procedures for determining subsidy. The new system would provide payment of ODS as a fixed and final daily amount so the operators and the government can firmly establish the amounts of subsidy receivable on a current basis.

2048. REPORTING OF INTERNATIONAL CAPITAL AND FOREIGN CURRENCY TRANSACTIONS AND HOLDINGS, TRANSFERS OF CREDIT, AND EXPORT OF COIN AND CURRENCY

Legal Authority: 31 USC 5315

CFR Citation: 31 CFR 128

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Part 128 of Title 31, CFR, sets forth the requirements and describes the forms used for reporting international capital and foreign currency transactions and holdings. Large amounts of offshore loans to U.S. nonbank residents are not being properly reported on the TIC C-series forms prescribed in Subpart B of Part 128. Much of this underreporting results from confusion among nonbank borrowers over whether the source of their loans is domestic or foreign. This confusion is exacerbated by the failure of U.S. intermediaries to comply with existing obligations, specified in the Form BL-2 instructions, either to report certain foreign transactions on behalf of their U.S. customers or to inform those customers of foreign ownership of claims held against them. This final rule describes and authorizes the issuance of TIC Form BL-3, designed for use by a bank or other financial intermediary in the U.S. to notify a nonbanking customer that a foreign loan has been arranged and that the customer has an obligation to report on TIC Form CQ-1.

2053. REVISION OF 31 CFR PART 205 (TDC NO. 1075), PAYMENTS BETWEEN THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT AND RECIPIENT ORGANIZATIONS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 31 USC 6503; 42 USC 4213

CFR Citation: 31 CFR 205

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Revision of 31 CFR 205 will implement a new funding technique for Federal programs. The regulation would require a State to pay interest on Federal funds from the time they are deposited to the State's account until the time those funds are paid out to redeem checks or warrants or make payments by other means. This new "Checks Issued-Interest Remitted" technique was developed in response to statutes in some States that require that funds reside in a bank account prior to the issuance of checks. This revision also provides for the remittance of interest by the Federal Government if a State disburses its own funds for program purposes in accordance with Federal law, regulation or Federal/State agreement.

Abstract: The amended guidelines revise and strengthen the financial criteria that must be met in order to qualify for a Treasury Certificate of Authority and as an Admitted Reinsurer. The revised guidelines will assist in more effectively using limited resources and thus enable the government to more readily determine which insurance companies are financially strong enough to be allowed to write federal surety bonds. The revision is anticipated to help alleviate the need for additional personnel to monitor this program and should not increase costs to the insurance industry.

2063. REDUCED PROOF DISTILLED SPIRITS PRODUCTS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 27 USC 205

CFR Citation: 27 CFR 5.22

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: ATF is proposing to amend the regulations to provide for reduced proof distilled spirits products similar to "light beer," "light wine" and similar "light products which have become increasingly popular with consumers in recent years. Since 1968, the words "light whisky" have referred to whisky produced by two processes which are different from other American whiskies and the term "light" does not refer to lower alcohol content. However, ATF is considering abolishing "light whisky" as a standard of identity, so that the word "light" can refer only to reduced alcohol content. Unlike wine and beer, distilled spirits products are usually sold at more than one bottling proof (e.g. whisky is frequently sold at 80 degrees, 86 degrees, and 100 degrees proof) with the difference in proof being the only distinction between products which are otherwise identical. Therefore, ATF must carefully consider labeling to ensure there exists a clear cut difference in the minds of consumers between products at minimum bottling proof or above minimum bottling proof, and those which are reduced in proof.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7651 to 7652; PL 85-859; 26 USC 5314; 26 USC 7805

CFR Citation: 27 CFR 250

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: As part of the recodification of Part 250, we plan to simplify, consolidate and or eliminate as many sections of regulations as possible placing particular emphasis on reducing the number of recordkeeping requirements, forms, and customs responsibilities. Wherever possible, we plan to utilize a proprietor's commercial records in lieu of requiring the proprietor to submit public use forms. These changes to Part 250 should considerably reduce the burden hours on industry.

Abstract: ATF is proposing to define words denoting winemaking operations for use on wine labels in conjunction with the name and address of the bottler. 2071. ● NON-GENERIC DESIGNATIONS OF GRAPE WINE HAVING GEOGRAPHICAL SIGNIFICANCE

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 27 USC 205

CFR Citation: 27 CFR 4.24

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposal expands the list of names officially recognized under 27 CFR Part 4, as being non-generic for the purposes of labeling and advertising of wine. This proposal is the result of petitions from numerous foreign countries for ATF recognition of non-generic wine designations which, in their view, denote distinctive national products. This proposal is also an outgrowth of one of the commitments made by the United States, in the Exchange of Letters of July 26, 1983 with the Commission of the European Communities, to work within the regulatory framework of 27 CFR Part 4, to prevent erosion of non-generic designations of geographic significance. For practical reasons it is being proposed that only "examples" of non-generic designations be listed in Part 4 while a complete list of all non-generic designations be listed in a new Part 12.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 27 USC 205

CFR Citation: 27 CFR 5.22(b)(1)(iii); 27 CFR 19.346(b)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Current regulations do not provide for distilled spirits plant proprietors to mingle and still designate as straight whiskies of the same type produced at different distilleries or produced by different distillers. This project will allow such whiskies to be labeled as straight as long as the whiskies are produced within the same state. Their only alternative is to leave the regulations as they are and to not allow such whiskies to be mingled and designated as straight. We do not anticipate any extra costs to result from this change in regulations. This change will result in greater flexibility for distilled spirits plant proprietors.

Abstract: Under current law (26 USC 7652), the excise taxes collected on all merchandise manufactured in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, and shipped to the U.S., are deposited into the Treasury of either Puerto Rico or the Virgin Islands.

The Caribbean Basin Economic Recovery Act was passed to promote the economic revitalization of the Caribbean Basin area by removing the duty on certain merchandise from certified Caribbean Basin countries. In order to minimize any adverse effects this would have on Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, a provision was added to require that the excise taxes collected on all rum that is imported into the U.S. be deposited in the Treasuries of Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. This would be in addition to the amounts already transferred under 28 U.S.C. 7652 (a) and (b).

Abstract: This proposed rule would allow a brewer who operates more than one brewery to use a principal place of business as the address shown on labels in lieu of listing the actual place of production or showing all of the breweries operated by the brewer. This rule would benefit the industry by eliminating the need to prepare redesigned labels every time a brewery was bought, sold, built, or otherwise disposed of. It would benefit industry and government by reducing the numbers of labels submitted for approval under the Federal Administration Act.

Semiannual Agenda of Regulatory Actions

AGENCY: Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, Treasury.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda of regulations.

SUMMARY: As required by the Regulatory Flexibility Act and Executive Order 12291, the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (Office) has prepared this semiannual agenda of its rules and regulations currently under review and scheduled for review. Regulatory actions taken since the publication of the Office's previous semiannual agenda on October 29, 1985 (50 FR 44503) are also included. It is expected that this semiannual agenda will enable the public to be more aware of, and allow it to more effectively participate in, the Office's regulatory activity.

ADDRESS: The mailing address for all contacts: Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, 490 L'Enfant Plaza East, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20219.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: For general information about this semiannual agenda contact Nancy Lowther, Financial Analyst, Legislative and Regulatory Analysis Division, (202) 447-1177.

For additional information about a particular item on this semiannual agenda contact the individual identified as the contact person.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Office has determined that none of the rulemakings discussed in this semiannual agenda requires a regulatory flexibility analysis; all entries have been determined not to have a "significant impact on a substantial number of small entities," and therefore are not subject to the provisions of the Act. Additionally, none of the rules is a "major" rule as defined by Executive Order 12291. Executive Order 12291 defines a "major" rule as one likely to result in:

(1) An annual effect on the economy of $100 million or more;

(2) A major increase in costs or prices for consumers, individual industries, Federal, State, or local government agencies, or geographic regions; or

(3) Significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

Abstract: The Office is engaged in a continuing review of its rules, policies, and procedures governing corporate activities. On February 19, 1986, at 51 FR 06006, the Office withdrew a proposed rule on the establishment of domestic branches, seasonal agencies and customer bank communication terminals (CBCTs). The Office anticipates revision of its corporate delegations and its merger policies. These proposals are expected to benefit national banks and the Office by removing burdensome and costly regulatory requirements, while maintaining the Office's ability to render an informed decision on the proposed activity. The effect on small entities is considered in the development of each rulemaking.

Abstract: This rule governs the release by this Office of documents, especially reports of examination, and testimony for use in litigation to which the Office is not a party. 2092. SECURITIES EXCHANGE ACT DISCLOSURE RULES

Legal Authority: 15 USC 78

CFR Citation: 12 CFR 11, (New Subsection)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed rule would require that more detailed and meaningful information be provided to shareholders and this Office concerning banks' loan portfolios, other sources of income and exposure to risks. This will assist shareholders in evaluating proposals for mergers, consolidations, acquisitions and similar matters and will assist the Office in administering and enforcing the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 as it applies to national banks. The Office considered not proposing the additional amendments or proposing them as a general guide rather than a rule. However, the Office determined it was appropriate to propose the additional requirements as amendments to Part 11 because the Office believes the proposed requirements will help to clarify the types of disclosures which the Office, shareholders and the public would consider material in analyzing various Exchange Act filings and statements. The effect on small entities will be considered in the development of this rulemaking.

2094. ● INVESTMENT SECURITIES REGULATION

Legal Authority: 12 USC 1 et seq; 12 USC 24(7)

CFR Citation: 12 CFR 1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Office proposes to amend this regulation to provide adequate safeguards for the purchase of mortgage-backed securities by national banks for their own accounts. The proposal will require that issues of such securities, in order to be eligible for purchase by national banks, must satisfy the Office's standards of investment quality and marketability. The proposal is considered a desirable alternative to leaving national banks without guidance in this area. The effect on small entities will be considered in the development of this rulemaking.

2095. REQUIRED NOTIFICATION TO NOMINATE BANK DIRECTORS

Legal Authority: 12 USC 1 et seq

CFR Citation: 12 CFR 17

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation states that national banks may adopt bylaws or articles of association that require any shareholder proposing to nominate a director, other than a management nominee, to file certain information in advance with the Office and the bank. The office is rescinding this regulation because even in its absence a bank may adopt an article/bylaw that requires any shareholder who intends to nominate a candidate for election to the board of directors to notify the bank in advance of the shareholder meeting. The rulemaking will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small banks or other entities.

Abstract: The proposal establishes a regulation requiring national banks to submit a criminal referral form upon the occurrence or discovery of any known or suspected theft, embezzlement, check-kiting operation, misappropriation, or other defalcation involving bank personnel or bank funds, or any other suspected criminal violation involving the affairs of the bank. Mysterious disappearances or unexplained shortages of bank funds need not be reported if they are due to errors which have been discovered and corrected within seven business days. Final Rule Stage

Abstract: The proposed regulation revises certain disclosure requirements of this Office. It would require all national banks to prepare periodic reports about their operations, file them with the Office, notify shareholders and depositors of their availability and supply them to such persons upon request and at no cost. The required reports would be prepared annually, quarterly, and shortly after the occurrence of significant events. They would contain narrative information about the bank, its management, results of operations, financial condition, and the existence of enforcement actions. In addition, the reports would contain financial statements covering multiple reporting periods. The reports would also contain information concerning bank fees, service charges, and funds availability. Banks which currently are subject to 12 CFR 11 and those which are members of bank holding companies subject to periodic disclosure requirements of the Securities and Exchange Commission might be able to use reports filed pursuant to those requirements, supplemented with information about the bank. The effect on small entities will be considered in the development of this rulemaking.

Abstract: This rule consists of technical amendments involving changes in references to provisions of the Securities Exchange Act Disclosure Rules (12 CFR 11). Abstract: The rule addresses a series of amendments to the securities disclosure regulations of the Office. The amendments govern such matters as the form and content of financial statements of national banks, prescribed formats for financial statements and schedules, and requirements prohibiting the falsification of accounting records and misrepresentations by officers and directors of national banks. The rule also reformats the regulation into a more logical form through the development of centralized bodies of nonfinancial and financial disclosure items comparable to the Securities and Exchange Commission's Regulations S-K and S-X, to which the various disclosure forms for registration, periodic reporting and proxy solicitation make reference. The regulation will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small banks or other entities.

Abstract: This regulation requires national banks to record and retain information on age, race, sex, and marital status of applicants for home loans. Its purpose is to gather data necessary to statistically analyze lending practices to detect possible illegal discrimination. The Office anticipates amending this regulation only if it should become inconsistent with Regulation B data collection and recordkeeping requirements promulgated by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System. After reviewing the final rule published by the Board on November 20, 1985 (50 FR 48018) the Office does not anticipate amending this regulation.

Abstract: The proposed rule will relate to a national bank's obligation to forward proxy material and related information to bank customers owning securities held by the bank in its name or that of a bank nominee. The rulemaking is expected to benefit bank customers by ensuring that they receive in a timely fashion those materials needed to make informed decisions on shareholder matters. The Office will not pursue this rulemaking project as The Shareholder Communications Act of 1985 (H. R. 1803); Pub. Abstract: This rule consists of technical amendments involving the correction of errors in some of the section or subsection designations and cross references, and the addition of clarifying instructions which should have accompanied a particular subsection. Semiannual Agenda

AGENCY: U.S. Customs Service, Treasury.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda.

SUMMARY: In response to Pub. L. 96-354, the "Regulatory Flexibility Act," and Executive Order 12291, "Federal Regulations," Customs has prepared and is publishing for public information a list of regulations either under development or under review.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: For additional information regarding the substance of any particular regulatory project described in the agenda, please communicate with the person identified as the "Agency Contact." All agency contact persons are located at U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, the address of which is noted below. Comments or inquiries of a general nature about the agenda itself should be directed to Gertrude A. Bresnahan, Regulations Control Branch, Office of Regulations and Rulings, Headquarters, U.S. Customs Service, Room 2426, 1301 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20229 (202-566-8237).

TREAS—CUSTOMS

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background

Public Law 96-354, the "Regulatory Flexibility Act" (RFA) and Executive Order (E.O.) 12291 of February 17, 1981, "Federal Regulations," require semiannual publication, in April and October of each year, or an agenda of regulations which are "likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities" and "major" regulations, respectively. The RFA and E.O. 12291 also require agencies to include in their agendas currently effective rules which are under agency review. Customs agenda includes a brief abstract of each regulatory project ("project") being considered, an indication of whether the project will have an RFA impact, the section(s) of the "Code of Federal Regulations" affected, the legal authority for the action being taken, the name, title, and telephone number of an agency contact and, where applicable, an approximate timetable of completing action on any project for which Customs has published a notice of proposed rulemaking. In addition, the status of projects referred to in previously published agendas is shown.

The following is the eleventh semiannual agenda to be published by Customs under the RFA and E.O. 12291. It has been determined that none of the projects listed as being under development meets the standards required of a "major" regulation provided in E.O. 12291.

General Statutory authority for the development or review of regulations relating to Customs matters is found in section 301, title 5, United States Code (5 U.S.C. 301), and in sections 66 and 1624, title 19, "United States Code" (19 U.S.C. 66, 1624). When appropriate, additional specific statutory authority is indicated as the legal authority for the project.

DATED: January 22, 1986.

B. James Fritz,

Acting Director, Office of Regulations and Rulings.

Abstract: The regulations provide rules for taking a deduction under section 404(d) of the Internal Revenue Code for deferred compensation paid to independent contractors. A deduction is permitted only when there is a corresponding income inclusion by the plan participant. In addition, the regulations provide guidance with regard to the amendment of section 404(b) of the Internal Revenue Code by section 133 of the Revenue Act of 1978, which clarified that a method of compensation or contributions having the effect of a plan deferring the receipt of compensation does not have to be similar to a stock bonus, pension, profit-sharing, or annuity plan to be subject to 404(a) of the Internal Revenue Code. The regulations describe methods of compensation or contributions subject to the section 404(a) rules. The regulations also reflect the amendment of section 404(b) of the Internal Revenue Code by the Tax Reform Act of 1984. That amendment provides that certain deferred benefits shall be treated as deferred compensation for purposes of section 404(a).

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1954; 26 USC 904(f) Internal Revenue Code of 1954; PL 97-248, Sec 211

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The regulations would provide rules for determining the amount of and recapturing overall foreign losses. An overall foreign loss under any one of the separate limitations on the foreign tax credit may offset the taxpayer's United States tax on United States source income in the year of the loss. The recapture rules provide that a portion of the taxpayer's foreign taxable income under the same limitation in subsequent years is to be recharacterized as United States source income, thereby reducing the taxpayer's foreign tax credit and preventing a double tax benefit from the loss.

Abstract: The regulations will establish procedures for taxpayers by which they must notify the Service of a change in foreign tax liability for a taxable year for which they claimed the foreign tax credit. The regulations provide special rules for redetermining the taxpayer's United States tax liability when the dollar value of the foreign currency fluctuates between the time for which the foreign tax credit is originally claimed and the time for which the foreign tax credit is redetermined. In addition, the regulations set forth deadlines for compliance with the notification requirements.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1954; 26 USC 6011 Internal Revenue Code of 1954

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Abstract: The regulations would require certain returns to be filed on magnetic media. Prior to enactment of section 319 of the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982, there was no statutory or regulatory requirement that any particular return be filed on magnetic media or in other machine-readable form. The regulations would provide standards for determining which returns would be required to be filed on magnetic media.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1954; 26 USC 6045 Internal Revenue Code of 1954

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The regulations in this project clarify the definition of the term "commodity" for purposes of broker reporting. Rules are provided for determining whether personal property (including gold and silver) is a commodity. Generally, the term "commodity" is defined as personal property that is deliverable in satisfaction of a regulated futures contract, certain specified personal property that the secretary determines is to be treated as a commodity or any form or quality of or any interest in such personal property. The term "commodity" does not include a security, regulated futures contract, forward contract, or a form of tangible personal property if the gross proceeds from its sale exceed by more than 15 percent its value as a commodity. The rules proposed include alternative methods (the "exact" and "approximate" methods) of tangible personal property valuation.
